MAYOR RENAMES HAWES FOR FIRE HEAD

Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols today, for the second time, sent to the Civil Service Commission the name of his old friend, John T. Hawes, as fire commissioner of Boston. On Jan. 26, when the commission rejected Mr. Hawes' name, the Mayor signed and said he believed it should be given further consideration. Hawes is connected with the local internal revenue office. Mayor Nichols has found it difficult to dispose of the office for some strange reason. It pays $7,500 a year, but the men considered by the Mayor did not [illegible]

TWO MOVIE MEN FACE ARREST IN PROBE OF TAYLOR SLAYING

High School Girl Vanishes on Trip

STUDENT, HUNTED IN HUB, LEFT HOME IN WAREHAM LAST FRIDAY

Wareham, March 24.—Police were notified today that Miss Beatrice Besse, 18 years old, an attractive Wareham High School girl, disappeared from her home five days ago and cannot be located by her family.

Apparently bound for school, the girl left the house of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Besse, with whom she made her home in Sawyer road, last Friday morning.

A few hours later a note was found explaining that she was going away for a short trip, but failing to name her destination. It is now believed she took a train to Boston and is either seeking work there or has gone to New York.

Her grandparents discovered that she had secretly packed a grip which she took with her. She had only $20 with her, however, when she left home. In response to queries from her father, relatives in New York have replied that she is not with them.

Miss Besse was popular among her school chums. Until a few months ago she lived with her father, Arthur Besse, and her step-mother, but owing to family differences left and went to live with her grandparents. Her father and a cousin, Ralph Besse, who have been actively searching for her, are now co-operating with the police in tracing her movements.

DEATH TAKES EVANS, SAVINGS BANK HEAD

Wilmot R. Evans, president of the Boston Five Cents Savings Bank, died today at the age of seventy-four at his home, No. 28 Chestnut street, Beacon Hill, after an illness of nine days.

Besides being president of the Provinces street banking institution, Mr. Evans was a director of the First National Bank and prominent in Boston financial affairs in general.

For many years he was president of the Winthrop National Bank which was bought out by the Merchants National.

He was also a figure in civic affairs and served for a time on the Metropolitan District Water Board.

He is survived by a son, Wilmot R. Evans, Jr., of Everett, and a daughter, Mrs. Florence F. Dibbs of Newbury, where Mr. Evans had an estate.

CHAMBERLAIN TAKEN TO TASK BY BERLIN

Berlin, March 24 (A.P.)—Replying to Sir Austen Chamberlain's statements in the House of Commons debate, the German government today made public its correspondence with Brazil regarding the League of Nations. The government argues it is clear that Germany had the right to expect admission to the League council alone.

The Brazilian note contains this statement:

"Brazil has no objection to Germany entering the League of Nations as a member, but on the contrary desires it. Neither is Brazil opposed in principle to Germany obtaining a permanent seat on the Council."

The Communique expresses surprise that the British foreign secretary, in his speech, did not refer to the foregoing passages.

Sir Austen told the House of Com-

MRS. CHARLES S. WALDO SEEKS PARIS DIVORCE

Miss Gretchen Howes Waldo, formerly of Brookline, today filed a petition in Paris for a divorce from her husband, Charles Sidney Waldo of Boston, charging desertion and asking custody of their three children.

The Waldos, who are well known in Boston and Brookline society, were married in Brookline October 10, 1907. The ceremony was simple, as the bride's family was in mourning for her father, the late Osborne Howes.

The bride was a member of the Vincent Club and the 1902 Sewing Circle. Waldo graduated from Harvard in the class of '06 and is a member of the Country and University Clubs and the Hasty Pudding, Calumet, D. K. E. and Zeta Psi Clubs of Cambridge.

No British Hysterics
A Chinese Lexington
Thicker Than Rubber
Where Is Lock-Ah-Tam?

By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1926, by The Star Company)

BERMONDSEY, one of the boroughs of the city of London, decides, through its Town Council, to fly a red flag, instead of the British Union Jack, over the Town Hall.

Another London borough, Battersea, inhabited, like Bermondsey, by British working people, largely discontented, got the red flag example.

THE BRITISH don't have hysterics over an incident of that kind, and don't try to put everybody in jail, or otherwise act childishly. On the contrary, they say, "If you WANT a red flag, go ahead and HAVE it."

Wise Britishers know that foolishness is less dangerous if you give it rope.

TEN MONTHS AGO Chinese students were shot down in Shanghai by the European police in the "international settlement."

You are told that this shooting will be as important in history as the shot fired at Lexington in 1776, but that's a mistake. Shooting a few students in a nation of five hundred millions, overwhelmingly ILLITERATE, is sad, but not important, historically.

Four hundred million of the five hundred million Chinese have probably not yet heard about the shooting and never will hear of it. It is AVERAGE intelligence that makes events important.

THOSE THAT HAVE worried because American business is getting "too big" may soon worry because American business is not BIG ENOUGH to compete with big business in Europe.

Blood is thicker than water. Britain and the United States are friendly. But blood is not thicker than RUBBER, and the British have been taxing us thoroughly and legitimately through their gigantic rubber monopoly, with government assistance.

Now comes a great European steel trust, not limited to Britain, but taking in France, England, Germany, Belgium, and leaving out the United States. All European nations concentrated on iron and steel production during the war. Now the Allies unite

Is Volstead Law Right or Wrong? What Say YOU?

The method of Canada and England in dealing with the liquor question is advocated by many of the men and women participating in the national poll on the prohibition issue being conducted by the Boston Evening American and additional Hearst newspapers, in co-operation with other publications throughout the country.

"The best way to handle this problem," writes Edward Goshen of Old Orchard, Maine, "is as handled in Canada, and in England, through government operated places and in sealed packages, with no drinking on the premises, where a person can get a pure article at a right price and have some degree of security that it will not kill him." This attitude is taken by many other writers.

The bulk of the votes being received by the Boston Evening American favor modification of the present law and local option.

The vote of the Boston Evening American, to date, follows:

1—Are you in favor of the existing prohibition law?
Yes 353 No 10683

2—Are you in favor of local option?
Yes 8673 No 1390

3—Are you in favor of modification of the Volstead Act to permit the manufacture and sale of beer with 2¾ per cent. alcoholic content?

NEW LOW MADE BY BEARS

New York, March 4 (A.P.)—An avalanche of selling orders swept the stock market today, carrying more than a score issues off 3 to 19 points to new low records for the year.

The government's investigation of recent oil mergers, reports of a slackening activity in basic industries and of widespread cancellation of automobile orders and the omission of the Pittsburgh Coal preferred dividend contributed to the bearish sentiment.

GIRL CRUSHED IN AUTO CRASH

Worcester, March 24—Miss Marion T. Ladner, twenty-two-year-old stenographer of No. 98 Brooklina street this city, was probably fatally injured today when the automobile in which she was riding was in head-on collision with a trolley car on Main street.

Leslie H. Gale of No. 1 Delawanda drive, operating the automobile, was cut on the face.

Gale, a neighbor of Miss Ladner, was taking her to work. Trailing a trolley on Main street, near Maywood street, Gale's car was forced over into the left-hand tracks by another machine that crowded him. A trolley going in the opposite direction crashed into Gale's machine.

Miss Ladner is in the City Hospital with a fractured skull and possible internal injuries, her name being on the danger list.

EXPOSURES IN DEATH PLOT AGAINST TAYLOR SHOCKING, SAYS KEYES

Chicago, March 24 (I.N.S.)—Arrest of two Chicago men well-known in the moving pave industry appeared imminent today following announcement by District Attorney Asa Keyes of Los Angeles that the mysterious murder of William Desmond Taylor had been solved.

Taylor, famous motion pare director, was shot to death in his Hollywood home four yea ago. The name of the actual murderer is known to Keyes a his assistant, Harold L. Davis, but it cannot be published unl an arrest is made, Keyes said today.

Keyes would not say whether the Chicago men are wanted as accomplices or merely as material witnesses.

As soon as he reaches Los Angeles, Keyes said, he will summon for questioning three women. They are Mrs. Charlotte Shelby, mother of Mary Miles Minter; Miss Minter herself and Mabel Normand.

While Miss Normand and Miss Minter have been absolved of blame for any part in the crime itself, Keyes believes they have considerable information that he needs.

"We knew who killed Taylor four weeks ago," said Keyes after leaving a conference with State's Attorney Crowe, "but this trip was necessary for the purpose of getting corroborative evidence."

The nation will be shocked when the name of the slayer is announced, the Los Angeles official predicted. He said also that the naming of the conspirators who plotted the murder would create a further sensation. He hinted that these names have not hitherto been mentioned in connection with the case.

Both of the Chicago men now closely shadowed were in Hollywood at the time of the murder. They

WAR VET BEATEN AND ROBBED; TWO MEN HELD

Peabody, March 24.—Two men are held and the arrests of two more are expected as the result of an attack today on Thomas J. Travers of Summer street, who was bludgeoned, robbed and left dazed in a gutter in a lonely part of the city.

Travers, a World War veteran, who came here recently from Lowell, was waylaid by four men, one of whom was armed, near Orchard and Summer streets.

After beating him over the head with a blunt instrument, the thugs stripped him of his money and a gold watch.

Police, after a search, arrested Martin Eagan of Shillaber street, and Anos Stankus of Forest street on charges of assault and battery and robbery. They were held in court in $3,000 each.

Travers told police that one of the men posed as a Federal agent, engaging his attention while the others gathered around him. Then two pounced on him, according to his story. The watch that was stolen was a gift from Travers' mother on his return from service in France.

Mabel Normand Near Nervous Breakdown

Los Angeles, March 24 (I.N.S.)—Harrassed by the ever continuing notoriety given her by investigations of the murder of William Desmond Taylor four years ago, Mabel Normand, screen star, who visited Taylor's apartment the night he was killed, was at the point of a nervous breakdown today.

Miss Normand came off a lot where she is playing in a comedy, to talk to a reporter. She was extremely nervous.

"Oh, why can't they end this?" she exclaimed. "Heaven knows how I wish the district attorney would solve Taylor's death. I've told all I know before and I'd tell it a dozen times more if it would help.

"I just want to make a living in my profession, but it seems they won't even let me do that. And the newspapers—the stuff they have printed about Taylor's murder! Bah. It's tough on me."

Signed a month ago by a leading comedy company, Miss Normand came to Los Angeles from New York and a few days ago her first new picture was started. Since that time she has been besieged by interviewers to the point where she has been forced to live in seclusion, not even appearing in public to dine.

Today her health, she admitted, was practically shattered.

"Believe me, I'll be glad when they find out who killed William Desmond Taylor," she sobbed.

BISHOP URGES 'RESISTANCE' IN MEXICO

Mexico City, March 24 (A.P.)—Bishop Herrera y Pina of Monterey, in a pastoral letter to the Catholic priests and worshipers, urges them to offer passive resistance to the government's efforts to enforce the sections of the constitution relating to religion.

He directs the priests not to fulfill the constitutional requirements and to abandon their churches rather than obey other than ecclesiastical authorities. The worshipers, he adds, should not attend services when the officiating priest is disobeying these instructions.

The bishop also declares that the worshipers should organize a peaceful movement of opposition until amendment of the "anti-religious" sections of the constitution is brought about.

Coolidge Determines to Aid League Parleys

Washington, March 24 (I.N.S.)—President Coolidge is determined that none of the blame for the possible failure of the League of Nations' forthcoming disarmament conference shall fall on American shoulders.

This was the explanation advanced today for the decision to go ahead with plans for complete American cooperation, despite the preponderant belief that the conference is foredoomed to accomplish nothing if carried out on the lines already laid down. Hugh Gibson, Minister to Switzerland, has been chosen to head the American delegation.

Neither the President nor any of his chief advisers, who include Secretary of State Kellogg, ex-Secretary of State Hughes, and the members of the American delegation to Geneva, believe that it will be possible to reduce armament on a basis of "potential war strength" rather than on a basis of existing armies and navies.

It was felt, however, that American aloofness would be interpreted as an unwillingness to discuss a principle for which America has long stood—reduction or limitation of competitive armament, and that impression could not be allowed to stand.

LONELY LIFE DRIVES GIRL TO SUICIDE

New York, March 24.—Admitted by the last move to save Gerald Chapman from the death penalty will be made this afternoon at a conference to be held in the offices of F. J. Groehl, chief counsel for the condemned man.

In conference with Groehl will be Joseph M. Freedman and probably other attorneys interested in the case.

Chapman has but thirteen days to live, the execution having been set for April 6 at Wethersfield jail in Hartford.

It is reported that Chapman's attorneys have two plans which will be considered at the conference. One is an application for a Federal writ of habeas corpus, the other is to find Charles William Gregory, a missing witness, who, it is hoped, may prove an alibi for Chapman.

PROBE BARRING OF COUNTESS KAROLYI

Washington, March 24 (I.N.S.).—The proposed senatorial investigation into the activities of Count Laszlo Szechenyi, Hungarian minister to the United States, in connection with the exclusion of the Countess Karolyi, was considered in secret session today by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Senator Wheeler (D.) of Montana, who presented evidence bearing upon his charges against the Hungarian minister, was said to have a series of "reports" from a New York detective agency, employed by Szechenyi to trail the Countess and her husband, former President of Hungary, on a previous visit to the United States.

Wheeler charged the exclusion of the Countess Karolyi resulted from the "forging of certain documents which tended to connect her with certain undesirable organizations with whom the United States is not on friendly terms."

This information of "an unfavorable and fictitious character" was turned over to the Hungarian Minister, who paid the detective agency $20,000, according to Wheeler.

Turkey in Liquor Trade as Nation Takes to Drink

Constantinople, March 24 (A.P.).—The Turkish government has decided to take over, on June 1, the alcoholic drink business of the country. It will manufacture douzico, the national drink, which resembles aniseed cordial and also light wines and beers, and regulate the importation of alcoholic beverages.

Five per cent. of the liquor revenue will be devoted to aviation, the army and the navy. More Turks recently have gone into the liquor traffic than ever before in Turkey's history. Moslem prohibitionists regretfully admit the increasing inclination of the Turks toward strong drink.

GRIP KILLS HERO OF MONASTERY

Pawtucket, R. I., March 24 (A.P.).—Brother Joseph, O. C. R., known to thousands who have visited the Cistercian Monastery of Our Lady of the Valley in Cumberland, is dead, a martyr to duty. The Rev. Father Augustine, Prior of the Monastery, made public today the story of his heroism.

When an epidemic of grip swept through the little Monastery in the Diamond Hill section of Cumberland, Brother Joseph became ill with the others, but refused to surrender. At last 38 of the 41 inmates were sick, and he shouldered the burden of nursing. Pneumonia assailed him at last and he died yesterday.

"Against our entreaties, seriously ill for two days, Brother Joseph refused to take to his bed and insisted on caring for the others," the Prior said.

He was "guest brother" at the monastery, and his duty was to receive the many visitors to the place. The rule of silence which bound all the others was relaxed in his case because of his special office. He had been a member of the community for six years and only two weeks ago had taken his final vows. Before entering the order he was William J. Gilmartin of Haverhill. He was 40 years old.

Chiropractor Who Killed Miss Dietrich Faces Sentence of Twenty Years

Philadelphia, March 24 (A. P.).—David L. Marshall, chiropractor, was today found guilty of murder in the second degree in the killing of Anna May Dietrich.

The verdict carries with it a penalty of ten to twenty years in the State penitentiary.

Singing was heard in the jury room before the verdict was returned.

The jury, which retired at 3:05 o'clock last night, reported its verdict at 10:43 a. m. There was no demonstration when the verdict was rendered and after the formalities were over the roomful of spectators quietly departed.

The jury is said to have reached its decision shortly after court adjourned at 11 o'clock last night. This was indicated, a court official said today, by the singing he heard coming from the jury room at 2 a. m.

One of the songs he said he heard was, "Show Me the Way to Go Home."

The conviction is for the murder on January 19, of Miss Dietrich, thirty-five, of Norwood, in one of Marshall's offices.

Marshall signed a confession that he choked the pretty milliner to death; in court he repudiated this story and said she accidentally took poison.

He did admit that he dismembered her body and hid the pieces.

The case has been on trial for 14 days and had brought out medical testimony from high-standing experts, who flatly contradicted each other's theories.

The furniture and rug were stolen from Mrs. Lamar's estate at Lanesboro, but when recovered the $1,000 rug, measuring 12 by 24 feet, had been cut in two and the 9x12 sections were being used in two rooms.

ROB ROY'S HOUSE WILL HAVE ELECTRIC LIGHTS

Glasgow, Scotland, March 24 (A.P.).—Rob Roy's Glengyle house, on the borders of Perthshire and Stirlingshire, where the outlaw died in 1734, is to be modernized. It is to have electric call bells for the servants and electric lights.

The idea of doing away with candles and ancient oil lamps is that of the Glasgow municipality. Some of the townspeople regard the innovation as a sacrilege.

Rob Roy MacGregor still has a romantic hold on the imagination of readers of Sir Walter Scott.

ENDS MAN'S LIFE AND HER OWN

Windsor, Ct., March 24 (A.P.).—Milton Dibble, fifty, a farmhand, and his housekeeper, Mrs. Dora Howard, fifty, who also was his mother-in-law, were found dead from gas asphyxiation in their rooms today, and Medical Examiner Pratt gave an informal finding of murder and suicide.

Dr. Pratt was of the opinion, after considering the conditions, that the woman turned on two gas jets under an oven in the kitchen range last night, with the intention of ending both her ow troubles and those of Dibble, who frequently beat her.

PASSIONIST STUDENT TO BE BURIED TOMORROW

Frank Murphy, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Murphy of No. 3 St. Margaret street, Dorchester, a member of the Passionist Order and known in religion as Confrater Daniel, died at the sanitarium of the order, Mount Vision, N. Y.

He was born in Roxbury in 1904, and at the age of 15 joined the Passionist Order.

The funeral will be held tomorrow morning with a solemn requiem high mass celebrated at St. Gabriel's Monastery, Brighton.

MINISTER WHO GOT WET VOTE KEEPS JOB

Society women of the exclusive town of Dover made a tearful defence of the Rev. Frederic Hewes Busher, young pastor of Dover Evangelical Congregational Church, who faced discharge from his pulpit for publishing the returns of a straw ballot that showed Dover to be wet, and the sobbing women won their point.

By a vote of 31 to 25, the congregation voted to retain their pastor.

The meeting at the church was the outcome of a demand presented by a committee that Mr. Busher resign. It was marked by a spirited defence of the pastor on the part of practically all of the younger element of the town.

Moments of dramatic intensity were many. Broken-voiced women sobbed as they pleaded for their minister. Youngsters haltingly read from letters of support that poured in from the Boy Scouts, junior church members, and the Dover Choral Club.

All the while a stern-faced group listened to the pleas for the retention of the young pastor, preserving their ranks unbroken almost to the end.

The object of attack and defence, the Rev. Mr. Busher, made a touching reply to his critics. He held his parishioners tense until, with tears in his eyes and his voice wavering, he threw down the gauntlet.

Mr. Busher made his stand on the grounds that he was sincere in his efforts to conduct a straw ballot on the prohibition question. He felt that it was a method to arouse feeling and stimulate interest in that subject.

THE NEW METALLIC DRESSES

—Not only gowns but wraps, negligees and even pajamas being made of the glittering threads of gold and silver, copper and bronze, and jewels. You can keep up to the minute by reading the Paris fashion letter in the Boston Sunday Advertiser. Five superb illustrations.

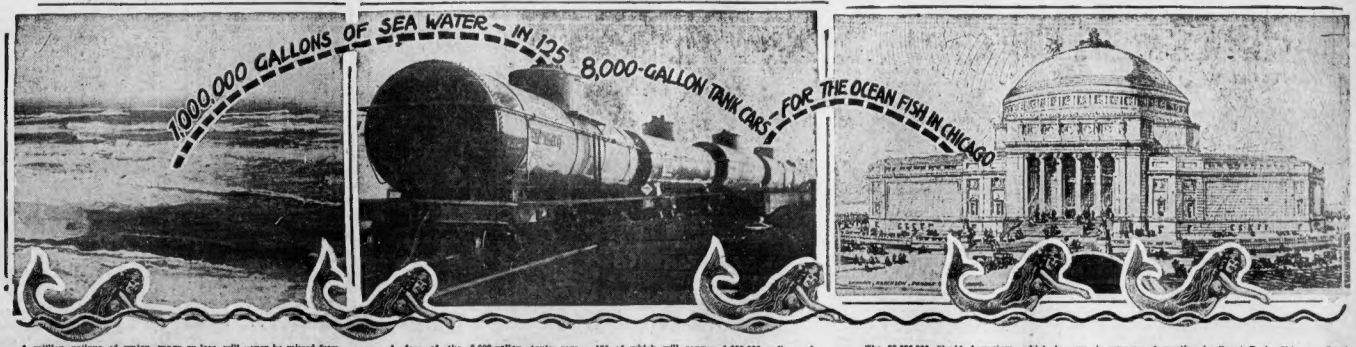

RUMANIA SANCTIONS PRINCE CAROL'S RETURN

London, March 24 (U.N.S.).—The Rumanian Government has authorized Prince Carol, who renounced his succession to the throne for the woman he loved, to return to Rumania. The Prince is residing in Paris as Carol Faraiman. Balkan observers see in the return of Carol the downfall of the Liberal party.

Fingerprints Foil Women's Plot at Hospital

Chicago, March 24 (A.P.).—Fingerprints in ketchup spilled on a table upset plans of two women employed in the county hospital kitchen to show their displeasure at not getting a raise in pay. The housekeeper, on whose table the ketchup was spilled, discovered the disgruntled women had smeared green soap on the chickens for a special dinner, put salt in the coffee, pepper in the oatmeal and what not. The hospital warden sent for his brother, a police officer, who secured confessions, after taking the fingerprints. The women were suspended.

MINIATURE OCEAN SHIPPED BY RAIL TO GIVE CHICAGO FISH ALL THE COMFORTS OF HOME

A million gallons of water, more or less, will never be missed from the broad Atlantic and will bring untold comfort to the salt water fish to be kept at the Shedd Aquarium at Chicago.

A few of the 8,000-gallon tank cars, 125 of which will convey 1,000,000 gallons of "strictly fresh" sea water to fill the marine tank in the new Shedd Aquarium at Chicago. Experts have found ocean fish do not thrive in synthetic salt water.

The $2,000,000 Shedd Aquarium, which is now in process of erection in Grant Park, Chicago. Specimens of various forms of life from the seven seas, as well as curious creatures from the different fresh water bodies of the world, will now be on exhibition for the edification and instruction of the Illinois metropolis' public.

V2 DIVES 200 FEET OFF CAPE

Provincetown, March 24 (A.P.).—The submarine V-2 put out to sea early today for deep diving tests off this port.

The weather was clear and the sea smooth, conditions described by officers of the vessel as ideal for the trials.

The V-2 will be subjected to tests similar to those which her sister ship underwent successfully off Rock Island recently. She will be submerged to a depth of 200 feet while experts study the effects of the pressure on her structure for more than 40 minutes.

The naval tug Wandank, as convoy, reported the V-2 submerged at 10 o'clock. A warning was sent out to shipping to keep away because of possible danger to the submarine during the test.

2 ESCAPE FIRE IN HOLDEN

Holden, March 24.—Another bid fire, a mile from the spot where a mother and five children were burned to death several weeks ago, destroyed early today the home of Mr. and Mrs. John McMahon in Highland street.

Only the efforts of a bucket brigade that rushed water from a well saved the McMahon garage adjoining.

Mr. and Mrs. McMahon, who were asleep in the house, fled the flames just in time to escape being trapped in the building.

A number of weeks ago they were two of many neighbors sympathizing with James Hoey after his wife and five children had been burned to death in a fire that destroyed the Hoey home, a mile from the McMahon residence.

Today's fire is believed to have been started by the explosion of an oil stove.

MINISTER INVESTIGATES 'SPEAKEASIES' AND FINDS DRY LAW 'WET'

The minister expected to prove that prohibition was beneficial but changed his mind after his probe. He then denounced the dry law from the pulpit.

As Rev. Dr. Empringham would look in one of the many disguises he assumed while making his country-wide tour.

Determined not to take a drink, the minister took all the wet goods he could get but instead of drinking it, he poured it out and made a first-hand analysis of it.

The minister would make a fine looking Scotchman. He found plenty of alleged real Scotch, but none worthy of the name.

Rev. James Empringham, Episcopal clergyman, who visited hundreds of "speakeasies" but managed not to take a single drink.

PROBE DENIED IN SUICIDE OF GIRL

Cambridge is at once saddened and amazed by the fact that Miss Elizabeth Lewis, daughter of the noted lawyer and Harvard athlete, William H. Lewis, committed suicide by hanging.

There will be no investigation into the death of the cultured and intellectual Cambridge school-teacher, according to Medical Examiner Dr. David C. Dow, because the girl's father is himself completely satisfied that his daughter was a victim of over-study, and sees no reason for any further probe into her suicide.

The circumstances were all the more pathetic because Miss Lewis' mother and her sister Dorothy were abroad. The sister was married March 4 in Paris. The mother attended the wedding.

With her sister a bride abroad and her mother still away Miss Elizabeth, high-strung, nervous, keenly sensitive and suffering from heart trouble, crept into the family home at 226 Upland road, Cambridge, and ended her life at the age of 21.

The fact that it was a suicide was kept secret until yesterday by the authorities. Report of something of the nature spread, however. When officials of the Cambridge Registry of Births, Deaths and Marriages were asked directly about it they admitted that the death return listed the cause of death as suicide by hanging.

SECRET AT TIME.

This secrecy was apparently at the urgent pleading of the grief-stricken father, w one personal popularity, record as a college athlete and positions of high public office are widely known.

Medical Examiner David C. Dow of Middlesex County refused to state the cause of death, saying:

"I went to the Lewis house. The girl was dead. Her father requested me not to say anything about it. I told him I would not. I shall not detract from that position. She is dead and buried now and I see no reason for reopening the matter."

Miss Lewis, born in Cambridge, July 5, 1905, attended Cambridge Grammar and High and Latin schools. Then she attended the Sorbonne University, Paris, in 1920 and 1921. Returning home she went to Radcliffe College, from which she was graduated with the rating of "cum laude" in 1924.

BECAME TEACHER.

Eager to put her education to practical use Miss Lewis was appointed a supply teacher in Cambridge High and Latin school last September.

She went into a nervous breakdown recently but there was no suspicion in the minds of her family that she contemplated such a shocking end.

Miss Lewis was a member of the North Congregational Church of Cambridge.

Her funeral, which was held privately at the stricken home March 18, was conducted by the Rev. Lawrence R. Howard, her pastor.

Principal Leslie Cleveland of the Cambridge High and Latin School said that Miss Lewis' death was a painful shock to him and his faculty.

KWISTOWSKI SEEN WITH WIFE ON FATAL NIGHT

A witness, who places Stanislaus Kwistowski with his wife Frances half an hour later than he is declared to have admitted being with her, was found today by the police in their probe of the murder of Mrs Kwistowski, whose body was found in the East Dedham woods.

The witness says he saw Mr. and Mrs. Kwistowski in front of the Central square, Cambridge, police station at 6 o'clock on March 18, the night of the murder.

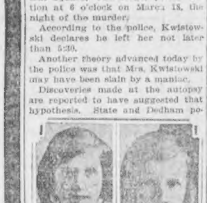

According to the police, Kwistowski declares he left her not later than 5:30.

Another theory advanced today by the police was that Mrs. Kwistowski may have been slain by a maniac.

Discoveries made at the autopsy are reported to have suggested that hypothesis. State and Dedham police are probing that and every other possible theory, despite the fact that the victim's husband, Stanislaus, is locked up charged with her murder.

Children returning from school have been molested by a day prowler in the section of Dedham parkway where Mrs. Kwistowski's body was found.

Mrs. Michael Vilkish of Harding Terrace said today that her two daughters, Mary, thirteen, and Veronica, eight, were attacked by the prowler.

ANOTHER "CANDY KID" GANGSTER IS CAUGHT

New York, March 24.—William J. Unkelbach, known as "The Duke," was in the hands of the police today charged with being the last important member of the Whittemore "Night Club" gang.

Unkelbach, an ex-convict and drug addict, and ninth member of the gang arrested, is specifically charged with complicity in the robbery of $200,000 worth of diamonds on January 11, when the gang held up Albert Goudvis and Emmanuel Veerman.

Here's Hope for Those Who Shy at Charleston!

Chicago, March 24 (A.P.).—A silver lining is becoming visible in the cloud which has hung over dancers unable to learn the Charleston, says Maurice Rubens, composer of music for musical comedies, here from New York.

"New York already is tiring of the bang-bang Charleston rhythm," he asserted. "I rewrote the entire score of a play I am now working on, to get rid of this type of tune. People want tunes that do not leave them with headaches."

Rockefeller Heir Likes Advertising Job

Princeton, March 24 (Universal).—John Davison Rockefeller III., upon whose shoulders some day probably will rest the responsibility for guiding the destiny of the Rockefeller billion, or billions, was seen here today, working hard to make money as he goes through Princeton University.

He is soliciting advertising for the college newspaper, and says he has learned that persistence is one of the first requisites in the job of selling advertising space.

On the campus they call him "John," and aneak of him as "a live wire" and "a good egg," which is the superlative of the college boy. He is tall, lean, fair-haired, firm-jawed, sparing with words and decisive in his answers, and is probably the most modest dresser in the freshman class. He said:

SELLING AN IDEA.

"In going out for business I selected the people who, I thought, would be the most benefited by advertising. I studied the situation carefully first. I knew I had something that these men wanted, and all I had to do was to tell them about it. I was selling an idea.

"Certainly, I was rebuffed at times. But I am a firm believer in persistence. And persistence won. It is my theory that in order to get the most out of four years in college one must enter whole-heartedly into the life of the institution, and go out after the opportunities afforded by the university, for they will not come to you.

"I spend eight hours a week soliciting advertising, and I enjoy it. Although I am not contemplating entering the field permanently, I think it would be an excellent career and, without egotism, believe if I applied myself I would be a success.

TO STUDY ADVERTISING.

"I am not qualified at present, due to my inexperience, to talk about advertising, but I am going into the subject thoroughly and will stick to it for the next four years.

"I chose advertising simply because it seemed to me to be the most worth while thing. The result is that I am happier and more contented. It keeps me busy.

"I see no reason, because of my family, for laying back. I have just as great a desire to make my own way as any other ambitious fellow."

TWO QUAKE SHOCKS RECORDED AT CAPITAL

Washington, March 24 (A.P.).—Two earthquake shocks were registered on the Georgetown University seismograph today.

The first, from 12:47 a. m. to 1:30 a. m., was placed by Director Tondorf approximately 1,600 miles from Washington and was of a pronounced character. The second, beginning about 6 a. m., reaching its maximum between 6:15 and 6:18, was a distant quake.

SOVIET BACKS A NEW WAR NOVEL BY GORKY

Naples, Italy, March 24.—Maxim Gorky, famous Russian author, is at work on a novel entitled "The Explorer," which, taking a character from 1890 to 1926, contains a description of the World War, the Russian revolution, and contemporary Italian conditions. The work is to be published soon by the official printers of the Soviet government.

Gorky is staying at the Villa Gallotti, at Posilipo.

B. & M. STRIKE AT BILLERICA LOOMS AGAIN

Shop workers of the Billerica shops of the Boston & Maine Railroad are again at war with the railroad heads as the result of a meeting which had been promised to be a conference for compromise and peace.

The shopmen left the meeting when Federal Conciliator Wood was barred by the railroad officials, as was Assistant United States Attorney E. R. Hale, and accordingly a strike of the shopmen is once more imminent.

The conference was called to discuss the discharge of four members of the shopmen's grievance committees. The shopmen considered that the presence of the two Federal officers was a necessity, but the railroad heads ruled that they would confer only with the shopmen themselves.

REVIVALIST IS JAILED FOR DISTURBING PEACE

Chicago, March 24 (A.P.).—Revival services to close the roadhouses around Lansing, Ill., have been halted by the arrest of the leading revivalist, the Rev. Benjamin M. Brown, on complaint of a roadhouse operator that the revivalist and his followers were disturbing the peace. After an hour at the village jail Brown was released on his own recognizance.

Negotiations Under Way for Purchase of Traverne Chateau for War Lord

Switzerland, snug refuge of royal exiles, now beckons the former Kaiser, long cooped up in a dreary castle at Doorn, Holland, hidden away from all but a few eyes.

Plans of the former war lord of Europe to appeal to the powers to permit him to change his place of exile were revealed today when it was learned that negotiations are underway for the purchase of a large chateau at Traverne, Switzerland, as a residence for William. Traverne is fifteen minutes' distant from Lugano.

It is more than seven years since William fled across the Dutch border to Doorn as the ruins of his monarchy crumbled.

Since that time he has been practically a hermit and his simple life during those seven years of exile stands in marked contrast to the pomp and glamour of his life before the World War.

A white beard which he raised after retreating to Doorn has greatly changed the personal appearance of his once martial figure. Chopping wood and daily walks have been his principal diversions.

2 MORE VICTIMS OF TUT'S TOMB

London, March 24—The legend of a smouldering Pharoah taking fearful vengeance upon all who visit his tomb was revived today with dispatches from Egypt announcing the death of two eminent Egyptologists. Both had recently paid visits to the tomb of King Tut-ankh-amen.

Georges Benedite, curator of the Egyptian section of the Louvre, died at Luxor almost at the same moment as Paul Cesanova, professor of Assyrian literature at the College of France, died at Cairo.

A theory has arisen that the walls of the sarcophagus were powdered with a mysterious poison which brought death or serious illness to all who entered.

WINE AND BEER MAJORITY IS INCREASING

Hearst Nation-Wide Poll Shows 6 to 1 In Favor of Law Modification

The New England newspapers now co-operating with the Boston Evening American in testing public sentiment on prohibition are: Holyoke (Mass.) Telegram, Orange (Mass.) Enterprise and Journal, Laconia (N. H.) Evening Citizen, Palmer (Mass.) Journal-Register, Waterbury (Ct.) Democrat and Portsmouth (N. H.) Herald, Eastport (Me.) Sentinal and L'Alba, an Italian weekly independent newspaper of Newport, R. I.

Where do YOU stand on this issue? We want YOUR vote, so why not drop it in the mail today?

The National prohibition law is both attacked and defended in the letters being received by the Boston American.

F. R. A. Pingree, an 80-year-old Summer street, Boston, importer, writes, "I was a boy in Portland, Maine, when General Neal Dow started prohibition, which has always proved a failure and ALWAYS WILL. I don't care for liquor. I am not an imbiber but I DO CARE for the liberty of people in a free country. The Volstead Act is not only a wicked farce but it is a wicked law that takes so much of the people's money to enforce, or try to enforce. Enforcement of that law can never be accomplished."

CALLS ALCOHOL POISON.

Ella A. Farrell of Cliff street, Roxbury, believes in prohibition. Here is what she wrote: "Why should anyone want to drink alcohol which kills the living flesh? I have never known anyone who really and truly wanted it. It doesn't do anyone any good, except to those who have been bitten by a reptile. The Bible says that no drunkard shall enter the Kingdom of Heaven, so if God doesn't want them in Heaven I don't want them in my house or around me. I hope the people will vote in favor of prohibition."

Charles E. Fogwell of Palmer street, Fall River, wrote: "I do not chew, drink or smoke, but I believe any man has a right to any or all if he wishes."

Attorney William R. Goodland of Somerville wrote: "Whether it is better for a man to drink or not to drink is not the question that should interest this country at the present time. What should interest the people of this country more than anything else is, can we keep the 18th amendment in the Constitution and at the same time keep the Constitution respected by a majority of the people. I think we can NOT.

"Prohibition has become the foremost topic of the day and just in spite of the fact that the prohibitionists told us that it would bring with it a real Utopia.

"Have a Camel"

These words are first call to the world's finest smoke

THE choicest tobaccos grown are bought for Camel cigarettes. Millions of dollars are spent every year to insure their uniform quality.

No money is spared in the making of Camels. The tobacco is cured carefully and aged long. The exclusive Camel blend of fine Turkish and Domestic tobaccos is the work of experts. The paper in which Camels are rolled is specially made in France to obtain the best. Nothing is too good or too expensive that will make Camels a better smoke. But not a cent is spent to doll up Camel cigarettes. No fancy tips or gay and wasteful wrappings. We believe that the smokers of America want smoking quality without frills.

Camels simply will not tire your taste or leave a cigaretty after-taste, no matter how liberally you smoke them!

"Have a Camel!" is the password to the quality cigarette, with all the quality in the tobacco.

LEGION BACKING FOR PASSAIC STRIKERS

Passaic, N. J., March 24 (A.P.)—Two announcements brought encouragement to the striking textile workers today.

One was that the American Legion, through Gerald V. Carroll Post, 161, would seek to persuade the mill owners to meet them. The other was that the New Jersey State Senate had passed a bill to permit "peaceful picketing."

Pickets on duty at the Gera Mill in Passaic yesterday had a fight with mill employes who were on their way home from work. Police were called and arrested five men, who were released in $500 bail each.

Jack Rubenstein, aide to Albert Weisbord of the United Front Committee, has been indicted on a charge of attacking County Prisonkeeper Hubert Lefevre when he was incarcerated on a charge of disorderly conduct. He is on bail.

At a meeting of the strikers yesterday, Commander John F. McCarthy of Carroll Post, American Legion, presented an American flag to Weisbord. Weisbord read a message of sympathy from the Russian Textile Workers' Union of Moscow.

CHICAGO HOLDS SUPER-CROOK FOR 8 JOBS

Chicago, March 24 (A.P.).—William J. White, alleged slayer of a motorcycle policeman and believed to have taken part in eight robberies which netted $224,000, is in the custody of Chicago police today.

Shortly after his arrest he was identified as the leader of the band which recently got $80,000 in a spectacular payroll holdup at the International Harvester Company. Three witnesses later pointed him out as the murderer of Edward Pflaum, suburban officer, slain last December.

White is believed to have been the leader of two Chicago theatre robberies which netted $10,000 each, and also the leader of bands which escaped with $34,000 in a former International Harvester payroll holdup, and $25,000 from the McHenry, Ill., State Bank.

He is alleged to have participated in three other bank robberies in which $65,000 was stolen, including $52,000 taken from the Drovers' State Bank of Chicago.

White, known to the police as "Three Fingered Jack," was arrested in a suburban roadhouse. He was armed with four revolvers and a shotgun, but was taken by police before he could shoot.

MID-WEEK MOTOR NEWS

By JOHN J. McNEVIN, Automobile Editor

OLDSMOBILE MAN PIONEER AUTOIST

Henry Younghame, 63, also has driven every Oldsmobile model turned out to date.

FIRST TO DRIVE AUTOMOBILE IN DETROIT

Detroit's pioneer motorist is Henry Younghame, 63, who drove the first automobile ever seen in the streets of the automobile city.

Younghame has several other distinctions to his credit. He has driven every model Oldsmobile from the early experimental type, which he helped make, and has been in the employ of the Olds Motor Works for 33 years.

Here is the way he came to drive his first car:

Younghame was employed by the Olds Engineering Works, in Detroit, making stationary and motor boat engines. John D. Maxwell, later maker of the car that bore his name, was engineer at the plant. These two men helped build one of the first experimental Oldsmobiles under the direction of R. E. Olds. It took them two years to make the engine and another six weeks to get the spark to fire properly.

Younghame created the sensation of the year. It was so great that he was glad to steer his machine in back of a horse car and follow it practically all the distance, stopping and starting with it, so as not to raise too great a disturbance. That initial auto drive did not exceed the speed limit.

REO SALES FAR AHEAD OF 1925

Automobile sales for the present season are leaping far ahead of last year's record. One of the most notable examples of increased sales is furnished by J. M. Linscott of the Reo Company.

Sales of Reo passenger cars during the Auto show were 50 per cent. greater than in 1925, according to Mr. Linscott. Speed wagon sales showed a similar increase.

"It is natural to expect some advance in Reo sales from year to year," says Mr. Linscott, "but such a decided gain as this shows how great a popular reception is being accorded the new models. The modish lines and colors of the new Reo passenger cars and the mechanical improvements recently adopted give this line a tremendous appeal for new buyers.

"At the same time they demonstrate the ability of the Reo engineering staff to adopt new and progressive features without embarassing present Reo owners. I am particularly pleased with this consideration. It shows that Reo owners will continue to enjoy permanent satisfaction."

NEW ARMORED CAR HAS MANY FEATURES

The latest type of armored bank car has just been placed in service by the Second National Bank of Boston. It is mounted on a Buick seven-passenger chassis.

A feature of the car is that to all outward appearances it is very little different from the regular sedan. Safetee glass is used in the windows and it has been demonstrated that this glass will resist the impact of even a steel-jacketed, high-calibre bullet. The windows drop at the touch of a button, just enough to provide an aperture for return fire.

Bovite, a new armor metal, is used in the construction of the body, completely sheathing it at every point accessible to a bullet. High-powered projectiles will not penetrate bovite. The Buick chassis was selected on account of its sturdy construction and satisfactory performance.

This new type of car will be used in collection and pay roll delivery service within the city limits, and will be manned by a crew of five men, including a uniformed police officer, a driver, a messenger and two guards. It is the first of its type to be used by any bank in New England.

OVERHAUL AUTO BEFORE TRIPS

"Clean up and overhaul your car, before you take to the open road" is the warning issued by the American Automobile Association to all tourists and especially those who plan Spring trips.

Costly repair bills and a considerable number of accidents may be eliminated, the A. A. A. warns, by putting machines in condition for the road.

The A. A. A. bulletin, based on the experience of a host of "trouble men" attached to the emergency service stations of its affiliated clubs throughout the country, lists this advice.

Drain your crank case; clean out your cooling system, being sure that the fan belt and all hose connections are in good order, inspect the bearings in the wheels; tighten all chassis and body bolts; flush radiator, and be sure there are no leaks in it; insure proper lubrication of transmission and differential; clean up the entire gasoline distributing system; test the alignment of the steering gear and the wheels; go over the tires and the rims; test the batteries; give the generator and starter a house cleaning.

SECOND NATIONAL'S NEW ARMORED CAR

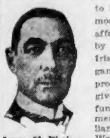

Built on a Buick seven-passenger, this car is the latest motor payroll protector. Safetee Glass is a feature.

Program Complete for Concert in Aid of Wallace Memorial

By JAMES WALSH

The sacred concert to be held under the auspices of the County Waterford Association in Symphony Hall next Sunday evening, promises to be one of the most successful affairs ever held by any of the Irish county organizations. The organization also extended its thanks to Congressman O'Connell of Rhode Island for his patriotic address as delivered in the National House of Representatives on March 17. President James P. Dorgan and William H. O'Brien addressed the meeting and congratulated the Irish societies for the impressive showing made in the Evacuation Day parade in South Boston. PROXY DIVORCE MAKES IT EASY IN MEXICO

Sonora's New Law Draws U. S. Couples From Paris and Reno

El Paso, Tex., March 24 (A.P.).—Live in New York and get your divorce in the State of Sonora, Mexico.

This is one of the provisions of the new easy divorce laws of that State that is expected to make heavy inroads into the Paris and Reno divorce business, according to Maxwell M. Wallach, New York lawyer, who has just returned from Nogales, Sonora, where he made an investigation of the new divorce code.

Mr. Wallach found that the law requires no legal residence and that in most cases it is not even necessary for either of the parties to appear in the proceedings, as all details can be arranged by proxy.

He found that there are twelve grounds for divorce and that these are so broad as to meet the requirements of the most whimsical and can be obtained at a cost of about a one-way de luxe steamship ticket to Paris.

Another attractive feature is that where the husband and wife have been living apart for more than 300 days, a new husband or wife may be acquired as soon as the decree is signed. In other cases 300 days must elapse.

Mr. Wallach said the entire cost of securing a decree should not be more than $500, including national and state taxes, attorneys' fees court costs translations and certificate.

Queen Mary Busy With Spring Gardening

London, March 24 (I.N.S.).—Queen Mary is doing her Spring gardening. Under the direction of the Queen, gardeners are tearing out many shrubs from the Buckingham Palace gardens and replacing them with flower beds. The Queen hopes thereby to enlarge the four acres of garden for the purposes of three garden parties to be given this season.

FRANCE HALTS STRIFE TO BAN RUBBER NIPPLES

Paris, March 24 (A.P.).—The Chamber of Deputies, for weeks the scene of strife over the financial policy of the government, devoted its entire morning session today to a restful argument over the effect of rubber nipple on babies' health.

The question has plainly nothing to do with the drop in the franc rate, but the legislators found it to be closely connected with the birth rate, and Deputy Pinard, dean of the Chamber, speaking from the Tribune, attacked the "nefarious nipples," which, he declared, threatened France's infant citizens with all the dangers from stifling to poisoning.

The Chamber ended by voting with raised hands to abolish rubber nipples throughout France and her colonies within three months.

SAVE FOR A SUNNY DAY

No. 13

THERE are two kinds of instalment plan: In one you pay the instalments after the purchase, until long months of cash-plus-interest finally make a second-hand article yours. On the other instalment plan, you start a savings account in The First National, build it steadily with small regular deposits, and when you want to buy something, you draw money and buy it—clean, outright, and for its lowest cost. Meanwhile, we're paying you interest on your savings—and you needn't pay a nickel of "carrying-charge" or interest on the article you buy. That's the "Sunny Day Instalment Plan."

DANDRUFF?

Bottle Bacilli, the cause of Dandruff. Illustration Reproduced from Hazen's "Diseases of the Skin." C. V. Mosby, Publisher.

When checked it has a persistent tendency to reappear, and often in more virulent form, with possible loss of hair or even total baldness.

The treatment to check dandruff requires constant cleanliness and the use of a suitable antiseptic solution to combat the disease and to heal the scalp.

Do something about it!

DANDRUFF is a danger signal. If you have it you should do something about it.

Perhaps you never knew it before, but dandruff is a germ disease. It spreads by infection from personal contact, as with the common use of combs and brushes. Children, for instance, are never troubled with dandruff until actually infected by some contact.

Dandruff is a disease difficult to cure but easy to check. It has a tendency to reappear, unless properly treated, and often brings with it the possible loss of hair or actual baldness.

The ideal treatment to combat dandruff conditions is the systematic use of Listerine, the safe antiseptic.

We have received hundreds of unsolicited letters from Listerine users, who are most enthusiastic in their claims for what Listerine will do in this way. If you are troubled with dandruff you owe it to yourself to try it.

The use of Listerine for dandruff is not complicated. You simply douse it on your scalp, full strength, and massage thoroughly. The effect is antiseptic, cleansing and healing. And you will be amazed to see how this treatment, followed systematically, combats dandruff.

Moreover, Listerine will not discolor the hair nor will it stain fabrics.

Not only men but women have become devoted users of Listerine for this purpose—women, particularly, since bobbed hair has been in vogue and has made them more conscious of dandruff if it happened to be present.

Try Listerine some evening when your scalp feels tired and itchy. Dandruff is probably causing the trouble. Apply it generously and then massage vigorously. You will find it a stimulating tonic for the scalp, and in addition to combating dandruff, you will find that it adds that luster and softness to the hair that is so important a part of being well-groomed.—Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, U.S.A.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

National Leader of Overseas League Being Entertained in Hub

MISS HOPE GRAY OF MOUNT VERNON place, that small by-way in Beacon Hill's old-timey and hallowed precincts, has as her house guest Miss Helen Douglas of Atlanta, Ga., who has come to town to celebrate, with a notable Boston and New England contingent, various anniversaries having to do with service in the Great War.

AS LEADER OF LOCAL feminine cohorts who saw service overseas it is quite fitting that Miss Gray should be hostess for Miss Douglas, for the latter is national leader of the Overseas League, a feminine band of some 5,000 strong.

THE LEAGUE STRETCHES from the Atlantic to the Pacific and has enrolled a doughty legion—all those "Sallies" and nurses, canteeners, signal corps girls, even British WAAC's and V. A. D.'s, ambulance drivers and such who had a part in the Great Adventure.

MISS DOUGLAS WAS an ambulance driver in France and other theatres of war, doing valiant and arduous service, and Miss Gray, through many, many months, was with that enormous war organization enrolled under the Red Triangle's well known insignia.

A DEAL OF QUIET entertaining has been going on for Miss Douglas, also some large and elaborate affairs. One of these was Miss Rosanna Thorndike's tea at her Beacon street home; another a dinner at the Architect's Club.

THE LAST WAS a merry gathering—with Miss Douglas in fine fettle as honor guest and Miss Gray doing the honors for the local set—nearly 100 war workers gathered about the festive board.

MISS DOUGLAS WAS the vivacious Southern girl to the fingertips, in a robe de style of white taffeta and tinsel lace, and Miss Gray, wearing a turquoise metal brocade, was distinctly in contrast. Antique earrings of matrix and necklet of the same brilliantly blue stones were very effective costume accessories.

MAJOR GENERAL CLARENCE R. EDWARDS and Mrs. Edwards have as house guests out at charming "Doneroving," their Dedham home, two nieces of Mrs. Edwards, Miss Gertrude Porter of Niagara, and Miss Charlotte Buck of Manhattan.

MRS. THORNDIKE D. HOWE is one of the notable younger matrons interested in the Service Ball staged on April 6 at the Somerset by the Military Order of the World War.

ENTERTAINMENT of the impromptu, informal sort (young people for luncheon and the like) goes on for these young girls arranged by Mrs. Edwards' friends. She, by the way, is back at her post in the Soldiers' Shop to take the reins after a brief illness.

THE SHOP (its longer and more formal title is "Disabled Ex-Service Men's Exchange") is off—so 'tis predicted—on another year of greatly deserved prosperity, to roll up a goodly addition on top of previous high records. Many special sales are being planned.

MUSICALLY the late season promises fare of high order, and Bostonians, always giving generous support to such occasions of a philanthropic background, are preparing to enjoy Madame Giannini on Thursday evening next.

A CONCERT by the noted Italian soprano at Symphony Hall is the offering, and Mrs. Henry M. Channing is directorial head; as to the philanthropy to benefit, that is the Household Nursing Association in Newbury street and its two training schools, an organization which hardly needs introduction to Bostonians.

SPONSORS FOR the concert are Mrs. James A. Parker, Mrs. William W. Vaughan, Mrs. Moses Williams, Jr., Mrs. Samuel Eliot, Mrs. Matthew Luce, Mrs. Charles L. Scudder and many others of the feminine persuasion who support these worthy affairs.

MASCULINE SUPPORTERS are Dr. Robert B. Osgood, Donald McKay Frost, Dr. Charles Cranpin and J. Randolph Coolidge. The advance sale of tickets, so I hear, is gratifying and insures an important gathering, thus lessening financial burdens for the Association.

THE CHARLES SUMNER BIRDS, JR., of Boston and the North Shore are to be away from their smart environment this Summer, so I hear, their plans reading for a jaunt to foreign shores lasting some months.

FROM SOMETIME in June until the Autumn they'll be gone taking their young hopefuls with them and waiting up an establishment nearby the new hunting headquarters in Ireland, recently acquired by Mr. Bird and his associates.

HEADQUARTERS ARE Bective House, near Nevan in the County of Meath, in the very midst of a famous Irish hunting country.

Well What D'Ye Know About That

New York—Do not kiss. This is one precaution especially advised by Dr. Louis L. Harris, city health commissioner, because of influenza and pneumonia.

* * *

San Juan—Some bullets! Accidentally discharged at an army target range, it wounded one private in the abdomen, mother in the knee, bounced off a box, struck a third private in the neck, then, after grazing a captain and a lieutenant, lodged in a fourth private's hip. Nobody was killed.

* * *

New York—Eight young immigrants, who, after making their pile went back to Greece for brides, have returned single, having decided that the most beauty is where the most money is.

* * *

Palm Beach—A girl in a kimona may not wear her bathing suit on her arm with impunity, even on the sands of the fashionable beach club. Helen Ford and Julia Brown —so they've described themselves— were arrested for doing so. They failed to appear in court and are out a total of $20 bail.

* * *

Capetown—Native diggers in the diamond fields are now being X-rayed to prevent them concealing diamonds by swallowing them.

* * *

New York—Walter Secker, who, as a lieutenant, fought in the air for Germany and won the Iron Cross, is now a private for the air service of the U. S. A. And he is sailing on U. S. S. Chateau Thierry for duty at Panama.

Mrs. Boardman

THE SOCIAL PRIMER

Mrs. Boardman, with Mr. Boardman and their two sons, are putting in a long Palm Beach season.

B IS for Boardman, urbanity gracious,
Wealthy, yet charmingly unostentatious,
North Shore and Boston 'til Winter snow flies
Then off to a villa 'neath Florida skies.

HEARST GIVES MILLION TO UNIVERSITY

Will Erect Memorial Hall to Mother on California Campus

Berkeley, Cal., March 24 (Universal).—Formal announcement of the gift of $1,000,000 from William Randolph Hearst for the erection of the Phoebe Apperson Hearst Memorial Hall on the campus, was announced at the Charter Day exercises of the University of California by President W. W. Campbell.

The memorial building, an edifice of rare beauty, will serve as a tribute to the late Mrs. Hearst, who took an active interest in the affairs of the university and its students. Mrs. Hearst was a member of the board of regents at the time of her death.

Other gifts totaling $575,000 for the establishment of research work, fellowships and awards, were announced by President W. W. Campbell.

"The University of California," said President Campbell, "is very grateful to its many friends for these concrete expressions of their interest in its continued welfare."

At the Charter Day exercises which were held in the Hearst Greek theatre, President Campbell said:

"This is our birthday. We are indeed but 58 years old and still in early manhood, as compared to such venerable institutions as Oxford, Cambridge, Paris and Padua, or even Harvard, Yale or Columbia. But we too, in due time, will be counting our birthdays by the hundreds."

The Charter Day speaker was Dr. Michael Idvorsky Pupin, president of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and professor of electro-mechanics at Columbia University.

Dr. Pupin told how he came to the United States more than 50 years ago, a poor, friendless and penniless boy, with no knowledge of America or its customs.

When asked by immigration officials if he had friends in this country, Dr. Pupin said he replied: "Yes, Franklin and Lincoln." They smiled and passed me in."

ITALIAN MUSIC FROM WBZ

"An evening in Italy" with the WBZ Concert Company will feature tonight's program by this group of talented artists appearing weekly from this station at nine o'clock Wednesday evenings. The music of sunny Italy, including dreamy and wistful Neapolitan folk songs contrasted with fiery arias from the [illegible] known operas written by Italian composers, will have an unusual appeal to the thousands of listeners who tune in the WBZ wave.

The entire program has been specially arranged by Vincent Spolzino, the Italian tenor of the company, who has revealed in his many broadcasts a true interpretation and feeling for the songs of his homeland. The vocal numbers will be sung by Ethel Curry, soprano, Ethel Woodman, contralto, Alden Redmond, baritone, and Vincent Spolzino and the WBZ Trio, composed of Cecile Forrest, violinist; Violet Hirsch, cellist; and Madeline Meredith, pianist, will play the accompaniments and instrumental selections.

The Radio Nature League, under the direction of Thornton W. Burgess, will hold its weekly meeting from WBZ tonight at 7:30 o'clock. Probably no program on the air today is as interesting, entertaining, and at the same time, as educational to both young and old, as these discussions of the wild life of our country.

Leo Reisman and his famous Hotel Brunswick Orchestra will conclude the evening's broadcast with their regular weekly offering of music of the dance variety.

FAY LANPHIER'S BEAUTY TALK

Several weeks ago a charming, as well as a beautiful, girl faced the microphone at Station WNAC, The Shepard Stores, and in a few simple paragraphs she told the New England woman her code of beauty. Almost immediately letters came in from these New England women, who, by the way, were members of the WNAC Woman's Club, to have this young lady speak again.

So Fay Lanphier, adjudged "Miss America," is to come again to the WNAC Woman's Club on Thursday morning at 10:30 for her second talk

Radio Queries

Q.—C. H., South Sudbury, Mass.: I am building a one-tube set, but I do not know how to wire it up. It is tuned with a variometer. I have all the parts, but I never put a radio together, so will be very pleased if you will send me a diagram.

A.—You must send me a complete list of the parts you have on hand. There are several one-tube hook-ups using variometers.

Q.—A. E. P., New Bedford: I now have a Radiola 3 with a balanced amplifier. I cannot cut out my local station and I do not get enough volume to push the loud speaker very well. I was thinking of changing over to UX199 and UX120 tubes. Do you think this is a good plan? If so, will you please send me a wiring diagram for batteries and set. I have heard about making a wave trap, but don't know just how it is done. I received your diagram for a three-tube set and am going to make one in my spare time.

A.—I would recommend the change to UX199 and UX120 tubes. Your volume will be considerably greater. I am sending you booklet which describes just how to do this. With regard to the wave trap, we give out in a few days. Will keep you in mind for one of them.

WEEI PRESENTS OPERATTA

WEEI will give to the New England audience, direct from New York tonight at 10 o'clock, Gilbert and Sullivan's operetta, "A Trial By Jury," a work not nearly as well known as the famous "Mikado" or "Pinafore," but possessing the same tuneful melodies.

The artists presenting this program, the well known WEAF Light Opera Company, including Ivy Scott, Wilson Miller, George O'Brien, Frank Johnson and Louis D. Zeidlar, with the accompanying orchestra, are under the direction of Cesare Sodero, who also conducts the WEAF Grand Opera Company.

This operetta is one of a series of presentations to be broadcast under Mr. Sodero's direction on Wednesday evenings at 10 o'clock.

Battery Efficiency

The life of a new battery is greatly reduced if connected to a worn-out battery. Old and new batteries should not be connected together. When a 45-volt "B" battery reaches 37 volts it should be discarded if most efficient operation of the set is desired.

ST. PAUL'S DEAN TO QUIT PULPIT

Dean E. S. Rousmaniere, loved head of St. Paul's Cathedral, never again will deliver one of his sparkling sermons from the pulpit of the church on Tremont street.

While no formal announcement of his retirement has yet been made, his close friends know that the brilliant cleric has made his last address, and even if he recovers from the paralysis that has attacked him he will never again be able to resume the pulpit.

He has shown improvement within the last few days, but even now is at times unable to speak at all

While the heads of the church are considering his sucessor, no specific action will b taken until the Rev John Dallas, who has acted as vicar during Dean Rousmaniere's illness, leaves the church, to be consecrated Bishop of New Hampshire early in May.

Find Holes Dug by Hunters of Pirate Gold

Pascagoula, Miss., March 24 (A.P.)—Excavations found in the tangled wilderness near an ancient home site here have led purchasers of the lands to believe fortune hunters had been digging for pirate gold.

Laborers discovered the holes while clearing undergrowth. Some of the excavations are recent. It is believed they were dug at night

Most of them were about an old tree, strangely shaped, and said to be a key to hidden treasure.

It is a historical fact that many of the old time pirates cruised along the gulf coast from Texas to the tip of the Florida peninsula.

BILL TO CHECK CRIME FOUGHT IN HOUSE

Boston Members Oppose Less Peremptory Challenges for Defendants

Over the opposition of Representatives John I. Fitzgerald and James J. Twohig of Boston, the House passed to a third reading the first of the eighteen bills recommended by the committee on judiciary to check the crime wave.

The bill reduces the number of peremptory challenges allowed a defendant from twenty two to twelve.

Twohig charged that the whole crime discussion has been stirred up by one man Registrar Frank A. Goodwin

He warned the House to go slow on "this man's bills" as some of them have a tendency to break down the protection of the falsely accused and might be the means of railroading them to jail

"If peremptory challenges are so bad," he asked, "why not do away with them entirely? They are really there for the protection of the accused, who is innocent until proven guilty. The amendment will be a hardship upon the poor but not on the rich offender who can afford to hire high priced lawyers."

Representative Fitzgerald declared that every man on trial should be given all the chance possible to prove his innocence. He alluded to the Ku Klux Klan saying that many charged with crimes in other sections of the country never committed them.

The Importance of Being Well Dressed

To Dress Well Is a Natural Instinct

THE desire to appear well in the eyes of our fellows is a dominant instinct, the instinct of social approval. To gain the sanction of the group has always been the aim of normal man.

The cave man sought it by wearing skins of the most ferocious animals. Today when a man selects a top coat or suit with great care as to style, material and tailoring, the same instinct prompts him.

And this is good judgment, not mere vanity. Opportunity begins with "selling" one's self. A primary step is to select clothing that will make you look the part from the advertisements in the Boston Evening American and Daily Advertiser.

ARMY BLAMED FOR SOLDIER'S OFFENSE

Assumed Guardianship of Boy Enlisting at 16, Scharton Claims

Responsibility for the plight in which Leonard E. Dean, private in the 13th U. S. Infantry at Camp Devens, has been placed through the serious charge made against him by Mrs. Margaret Clifton of Ayer will be laid at the door of the military authorities by William R. Scharton, who has been retained as counsel for the youth.

According to Attorney Scharton Dean is but 16 years old, having been born in Becket in September 1909, and is, therefore, a minor in the eyes of the law.

When Dean enlisted and gave his age as 18 years, the army authorities, in the opinion of his counsel, should have investigated his birth record, since he informed them he was born in this State.

Having failed to do so, Attorney Scharton claims the War Department actually assumed guardianship of his client when he enlisted and in that role is responsible for his alleged criminal act.

THREAT TO CUT OFF HER HEAD, WIFE SAYS

Specific acts of cruelty are named by Mrs. Mary Hurwitz in support of her suit for divorce which she has filed in the Suffolk Registry of Probate against her husband, Albert Hurwitz.

While they lived at No. 10 Middleton street, Dorchester, Mrs. Hurwitz says her husband grabbed her by the throat, threatened to choke her and then to cut off her head and put it on the stove to cook. In January, 19[illegible], she says that he announced the intention of seating her on a heated stove in order to do her bodily harm.

Because she would not borrow money at his behest, she says that Hurwitz struck her in the stomach with his fist, and caused her to faint.

At No. 10 Middleton street, according to Mrs. Hurwitz, her husband, in order to aggravate, harrass, frighten and annoy her, attempted to poison himself and threatened to kill her. Once he feigned death by lying under the bed and on another occasion he feigned to be a burglar.

McMORROW TO SELL PROPERTY FOR TAXES

City Collector William M. McMorrow today will place on sale 7,500 parcels of real estate upon which the 1925 taxes remain unpaid. The sale will be conducted at his office, the second floor of the City Hall Annex, and will be continued until the entire list of unpaid real estate parcels are disposed of.

The total amount of real estate taxes outstanding on January 1, was $4,628,801.06. The amount collected up to March 23, inclusive was $2,985,540.12, leaving a balance of $1,643,260.94.

For the third successive year Collector McMorrow has broken all records for tax collections in the city for nearly forty years. The success of his administration has been the open door policy which he has extended to the public during his incumbency.

WIDOWS OF MEMBERS NOT TO GET SALARIES

A bill to pay the widows of the late Representatives William D. Lancaster of Boston, Charles H. Ashley of Deerfield, and James H. Lyons of Methuen, this year's salary of the deceased members, has been killed in the House.

Representative Martin Hays of Boston said it was one that would cause more criticism than any other matter involving twenty times as much money. He characterized it as "a raid on the public treasury."

FORECAST GREAT BATTLE IN DEFENSE OF PEKIN

Pekin, March 24 (I. N. S.)—The people's army has apparently decided to defend Pekin, and possibilities of a great battle at the city walls are foreseen. After plans for evacuation had been made, there has been a sudden change in tactics. Forces of the people's army, withdrawn from Tientsin, are now being drawn up in a circle around Pekin, digging in and preparing to defend the capital.

GAVE WIFE ALL HIS CASH FOR BOARD AND CLOTHES

Brockton, March 24.—When Mrs. Catherine M. Horton testified that her husband, Alton M. Horton, son of Lieutenant-Colonel George E. Horton, had given her but $2 in all their married life, Brockton folk were somewhat amazed for young Horton had never been accused of niggardliness.

But when the husband took the stand in defense of himself on the charge of non-support, he showed that the interpretation of the word "give" was highly important in the case. He had admitted that he had "given" his wife but $2 since they were married, but explained this by saying that he "paid" her all his money for board and lodging and clothes.

This put the matter in quite a different light, and Judge C. Carroll King found young Horton not guilty on the charge of non-support of his wife.

Can You Find the Twins?

On your toes, EVERYBODY. Here's the greatest puzzle of all—the biggest rewards and the most fun. Get out your "specs," sharpen up your pencil, and FIND THE TWINS.

There are 18 pictures of this lovely lady on this page. To be sure they all look alike, but examine them closer. Two, and only two of them are exact duplicates. Yes, sirree. Only two of them are the real twins. Can you find them? It isn't as easy as it looks. Examine them carefully and be sure to read the clues below.

THESE CLUES WILL HELP

At first glance all of the pictures look alike. But on closer examination you will see that almost everyone differs in some way from all the others. In some the difference may be in the dark or light band on the brim of the hat, or the trimming on the collar. Or, some may wear necklaces, or ear-rings, or both. Only two are exactly alike. No, it's not as easy as it looks. You must search carefully.

Just look closely—make sure that you have the twins, then send in your answer. Somebody who finds the right twins is going to win $500 in cash. Make that "somebody" be you.

Send No Money—Costs Nothing to Try

FIND THE TWINS—Send in your answer. It's all free. No list of words to write, no money to send in, nothing to sell. Prizes will be given for the 100 best answers. Accuracy, style, and neatness will count. $500, 1st prize, $200, 2nd prize, etc. There are 100 prizes in all and in addition valuable Gift Bonds Will Also Be Given. Submit your answer as soon as possible. Get the family together and have them help you find the twins. And, most of all, send them in just as soon as you possibly can.

All answers should be mailed not later than March 31, 1926, and only one answer from a family permitted. In the event of a tie, prizes of equal value will be given each tying contestant.

A PIRATE of HEARTS By BEATRICE BURTON Author of "GILDED KISSES"

Love Sufferings of a Beautiful Boston Girl Who Had Heartroom for One Man Only

"We just won't let ourselves care—you and I," crooned Sylvia to the baby. "We love our Daddy even if he has forgotten us."

READ THIS FIRST

SYLVIA STARR, employed in the Boston Public Library, has been engaged to RANDALL PHELPS, Boston real estate man, for nearly a year when he asks her to break their engagement. He tells her with brutal frankness that he's in love with her chum, FAY SHIRLEY, a Beacon Hill flirt.

Heart-broken, Sylvia gives him up, greatly to the satisfaction of her Aunt Agnes ("AUNT AGONY"), the shrewd old maid who reared her. Aunt Agony says that Ranny will never stick to any one woman, and she dubs him a lazy good-for-nothing, besides. She encourages Sylvia to marry sober PETER WILK, of whom Ranny had always been jealous. Peter is of a good Boston family.

Her opinion of Ranny seems to be justified, too, when he and Fay give each other up, and he marries Sylvia after all, for he falls under Fay's spell once more and worries Sylvia by going out with her and by playing poker and losing great sums of money.

Uncomplaining, Sylvia does her own housework and gets along on very little money. And she is rewarded, for when she tells Ranny she is going to have a baby he turns over a new leaf and is almost a model husband, for a time. Fay announces her engagement to EDDIE CARTER, State street wholesale merchant, an old beau, and shortly marries him.

Ranny's young sister, LOLLY, causes a commotion in the family circle by marrying her father's chauffeur, THOMAS BOYLE, who is studying law on the side. MOTHER PHELPS vows she will never forgive the pair, but she finally does.

She and Sylvia become great friends and on the night when Sylvia's baby is born, it is to Mother Phelps she telephones for help. Ranny is out playing poker and Sylvia doesn't know where to find him. Hours and hours afterward, when RANNY, JUNIOR, has arrived, he returns home and comes in to see his wife and child with tears streaming down his face.

"Don't cry," Sylvia whispers to him, "I'm so happy I could die right now!"

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER XXV

(Copyright, 1926, Johnson Features, Inc.)

IT WAS a week later that Sylvia found out that Ranny had not come home at all on the night when his son was born.

As usual, it was Aunt Agony who let the cat out of the bag.

The trained nurse had left and she had taken over the care of Sylvia and the baby.

She was a perfect nurse. No one could shake a pillow quite as she could. No one could make milk toast taste like regular food and not mush as she could. No one knew better than she how to pat a baby on the back to bring up the gas from it's little stomach. She was a wonder, was Aunt Agony!

Her only trouble was that she just would talk!

LEADERS WILL FIGHT CANAL BILL AS RIDER

Washington, March 24 (I.N.S.) Administration leaders in Congress will fight any move to attach the all-American ship canal bill as a rider to the rivers and harbors measure. Representative Tilson, Connecticut, Republican leader, told the President today the New York ship measure should be considered separately, and declared he would refuse to give the bill consideration on the floor if it were tacked to the rivers and harbors appropriation bill by Representative Dempsey (R.) of New York.

RAIN RENEWS FEARS OF N. E. FLOODS

Maine Democrats Dodge Prohibition Question

RIVERS ON VERGE OF FLOODS

Waters Are Rising in Nashua, Merrimack, Connecticut and Penobscot

With showers forecast for today and heavier rain for tomorrow, the alarm of northern New England river-valley communities over impending floods increased.

General rains throughout the last twenty four hours brought the flood danger nearer and in many places country roads and much traveled highways were submerged.

At Nashua, N. H., a six-inch rise in the Nashua river was reported and other streams were swelling rapidly.

MAINE DAMS OVERFLOW.

In the Penobscot and St. Croix river valleys in Maine, dams and reservoirs were all but overflowing and the Kennebec and other rivers were at flood heights.

The probability of more rains brought fresh concern to Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut after it had appeared that the danger was past. The Merrimack and Connecticut rivers having been reported taking care of the added waters that warm weather rain and melting snow and ice had caused.

The cutter Ossipee is working desperately to cut a channel through the ice in the Penobscot River in order to relieve the water pressure on the river. The Nashua River floods threatened damage to the new bridge being constructed at Nashua.

FEAR ICE BREAK UP.

Water is surging over river dams in New Hampshire and Maine, while great danger threatens from the coming breaking up of ice and the consequent sweep of it upon bridges and wharfs. With ice breaking up in the Connecticut River near Northampton, the water level was reported a foot higher than a few days ago.

Seasonable temperatures were predicted for Boston for an indefinite period. The mercury was rising slowly at the local weather bureau this forenoon. Light showers were forecast, here for Friday, probably with fair but cloudy weather in the meantime.

'WETS' OF BOTH PARTIES UNITE IN CONGRESS

Washington, March 24 (I.N.S.)—The prohibition struggle in Congress reached a new point today with a tentative agreement reported as having been reached between Republican and Democratic "wets" to wipe out party lines and unite behind a modification program.

This development in the intermittent skirmishing between both wet and dry camps was scheduled to be officially signed and sealed tonight at a conference between both Senate and House modificationists of all political faiths.

The meeting has been cloaked in deepest secrecy. Virtually the entire Tammany delegation from New York swelled by a goodly representation from other "moist" sections of the country will make up the House representation, it is understood.

N. Y. Wets Lack 3 Votes on Referendum

Albany, N. Y., March 24 (I.N.S.)—Foes of prohibition today were nearer another victory in the New York Legislature than any time since they repealed the State dry enforcement law several years ago.

If the "wets" can round up three more votes they can pass a measure providing for a referendum so the voters of the State can decide whether they want the Volstead Act modified to permit the sale of light wines and beer.

BLIND MAN MUST PAY PENALTY

Absconding Hotel Clerk Shot Self and Destroyed Sight in Suicide Pact

New York, March 24 (A.P.)—Harry W. Cowan, middle aged hotel clerk and absconder, blind from a self-inflicted bullet wound, today faces death in the electric chair for the murder of Edith Burton last December.

He was found guilty of first degree murder by a Kings County jury last night after five hours deliberation. He will be sentenced Monday to death, the only penalty for first degree murder provided by New York statute.

The jury found Cowan guilty of shooting Miss Burton because she planned to break her friendship with him to marry former State Senator Arthur B. Lewis of [illegible], her admirer. Cowan maintained that Miss Burton was killed in a suicide pact with him to end their relations.

DESTROYED HIS SIGHT

The convicted man, who is separated from his wife, fired a bullet into his head shortly after Miss Burton's death. He succeeded only in destroying his sight.

Lewis, final witness for the State, testified that only a few days before Miss Burton's death he had instructed his lawyers to institute divorce proceedings, so that he might be free to marry her.

Letters from Cowan to the dead woman and to Lewis were introduced to prove he was jealous of his sixty-five year-old rival.

Cowan's troubles began in 1923 when he absconded with $[illegible] from a New York hotel where Miss Burton also was employed as a stenographer. Cowan's wife was left him after his embezzlement and [illegible] confessed to giving $6,000 of the money to "a girl who was blackmailing him."

Blackmail again entered the case with the introduction of an unmarked letter from Cowan to Lewis in which the convicted man referred to Miss Burton as "my common law wife." The letter warned the former State Senator that the girl was plotting to marry him, obtain possession of his fortune and then poison him so that she might use his money to extricate Cowan from his financial difficulties.

"PLATONIC INTEREST."

Lewis disappeared from his New York hotel immediately after Miss Burton's murder, but later returned and agreed to testify. He denied at first that he had anything but a platonic interest in Miss Burton.

Part of the defense was based on Cowan's testimony that he and Miss Burton had been drinking before the shooting occurred, but in his charge to the jury the court asserted that voluntary drunkenness was no excuse for a crime.

Cowan explained the letter to Lewis as a joke in which Miss Burton herself participated.

Shortly after getting the case the jury returned to the courtroom to ask if a recommendation for mercy would be legal.

They were told it would carry no legal weight if a verdict of first degree murder were returned but that if it were made the court might then ask a plea to the Governor for clemency. No recommendation was made when the verdict was returned.

RUMANIAN DANCES

HOW well I remember that great "Hora" danced in Jassy's streets on the day Rumania's reunion with Bessarabia was declared!

Times had been cruelly hard and grim, and the first sun ray in sad and starving Jassy was the arrival of the Bessarabian deputation coming to declare themselves one again with Rumania.

The king received them in the small house we inhabited (this was during the German occupation of Bucharest), all huddled together as we were, having left our own home for two long years to the enemy.

After we had talked to them and received their homage down they went into the street and, joining hands with the joyful, cheering crowd, began dancing beneath our windows, more and more ever joining in.

The king and I stood on the balcony watching. Finally they called, and called again for our children to come down and dance with them, which they did. The hora can be done alone, two, three, four, or hundreds. If many are dancing, they form circles and these circles become wider and wider, winding in concentrically in many rows.

Everybody dances it. I have seen the Metropolitan dance (the head of the church)! That was on top of a mountain in Transylvania to which we had all ridden on rough mountain ponies to unveil, with the aid of the church, a stone cross erected in memory of a national event.

The clouds came down, enveloping us, and after a huge repast amongst the peasants, everybody fell into the dance.

The king, his Ministers, our foreign guests and the peasants, never for getting the highest dignitaries of the church. Only I did not. I have never danced since the death of my little boy at the beginning of the war.

It was a curious and picturesque sight made mysterious by the clouds floating over the very faces of the merrymakers like torn gray veils.

Our Rumanian soldiers after a long march, instead of resting, will form a group and join hands for the hora—dancing endlessly, as though they were not spent with fatigue! There is always some gypsy to be found in the regiment whose squeaky violin wails out the music till dawn wipes out the stars and moon.

LONE GIRL OF 14 KEEPS BEACON FLASHING

London, March 24 (A.P.). — The light in Saint Helen's near Cambridge, on the Isle of Wight, was kept flashing three nights by the fourteen year-old daughter of the keeper Langtan. The girl was alone almost without food, but carried out her father's duties valiantly.

Keeper Langtan and his wife had rowed to the mainland to fetch food and oil to the lighthouse, says the Daily Mail. While they were ashore the sea rose in fury and notwithstanding several attempts made in a lifeboat and motorboat, the father and mother were unable to return to the beacon.

Aside from anxiety for his daughter, left alone in the lighthouse, with scarcely any food, Langtan worried as to whether she would realize the necessity to light the lamp, which is one of the most important along the coast. Great was his relief when punctually the light beamed and remained flashing throughout the period of his enforced absence on shore.

HUB 'POLS' DIVIDED ON ISSUE

Mayor Quinn Supports Fitzgerald; Ex-Lieut.-Gov. Barry Against Plan

While Maine Democrats evade the wet-dry issue in their state convention at Portland today, Massachusetts Democrats consider it an all-important strategic question, and the party seem to be divided nearly equally for and against a modification of the prohibition law.

Even as Massachusetts Democrats headed by Dr. John F. Fitzgerald discussed the question, the Maine Democrats, in a pre-convention meeting, decided to dodge the question.

Accordingly at Portland today there will be no discussion of light wines and beer, the delegates confining themselves to the endeavor, wholly local, of making Ernest L. McLean of Augusta the real party leader and the proposed Democratic candidate for Governor.

In Massachusetts, however, the question of liquor has become of such major import that no candidate for public office will be permitted to evade it, in all probability, but will be forced to declare himself for or against modification of the liquor laws.

Dr. John F. Fitzgerald put it squarely up to his party, when he said that former Senator David I. Walsh could assume once more his seat in the Senate chamber if he goes before the people next Fall on an outstanding wet platform.

The other leaders of the local Democratic party, however, are not entirely in agreement with Dr. Fitzgerald. While Mayor Edward Quinn of Cambridge supports Dr. Fitzgerald's stand heartily, former Lieutenant Governor Edward P. Barry puts himself on record as against the Fitzgerald plan.

Said Mayor Quinn: "I heartily agree with former Mayor Fitzgerald that modification of the Volstead act is a real live political issue. When men like President [illegible] of Columbia University, Cardinal O'Connell and others who have no use personally for liquor decry the evils of prohibition which are manifest to all, it is time for men who seek leadership to tell the people what they think of the wisdom of such a law."

Edward P. Barry feels that the Democrats would lose as many votes as they would gain by favoring a modification platform.

Tariff Main Issue at Portland Conclave

Portland, Me., March 24.—The Democratic campaign to capture Congress was opened today in the "Pine Tree State" by Representative Oldfield of Arkansas, chairman of the Democratic Congressional Committee, on a clean-cut tariff issue.

"Not since the Wilson administration," Oldfield told the Democratic State convention, "have Democrats had a better chance to control Congress than in the forthcoming election. The people are tired of seeing favors handed for big business contributions to the Republican party.

"I deny the country is experiencing general prosperity. I deny the administration is practicing strictest economy."

Oldfield cited a mass of figures to support his contentions. Appropriations were $12,000,000 more in 1925 than in 1924, for 1926 they were $83,000,000 more than 1925 and for 1927 it is estimated they will be $135,000,000 more than 1924, he said.

"In spite of this," he added, "the Republican Congress continues to support the exorbitant Fordney-McCumber tariff act, which costs the country at least $5,000,000,000 annually in excess profits to big manufacturers."

KING OF CLUBS, 100 TO 1, WINS ENGLISH RACE CLASSIC

UPSET HITS AT OPENER OF SEASON

Pat Donoghue, Son of Famous Steve, Pilots Victor in Lincolnshire Handicap

Lincoln England, March 24 (A P)—One of the greatest sensations on English flat racing in recent years was sprung this afternoon, when young Pat Donoghue, a mere boy, son of the famous Steve Donoghue, piloted a 100 to 1 shot home winner of the classic Lincolnshire handicap. the first big race of the season.

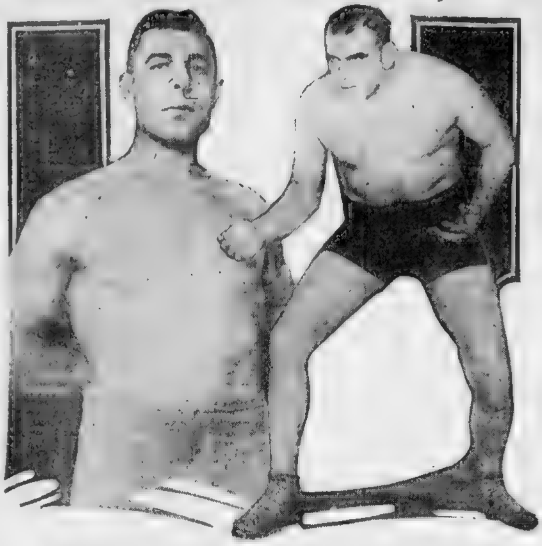

The winning horse was King of Clubs, owned by W. J. Belleroy, and was a rank outsider. Pat's father, England's most famous jockey, riding Argeia, was unplaced. The handicap is run over a straight mile and carries a purse of 1,000 pounds with extras

Zionist, owned by the Aga Kahn, a hot favorite, heavily backed at 9 to 2, took second, but another outsider, Vessington Star, owned by J Duggan, was third, having been quoted at 25 to 1.

French bettors are reported to have stood to win a quarter of a million pounds (about $1,250,000) if the French horse Lustucru, at 20 to 1 had come first

Twenty-six horses were entered K. Macomber's un God 2nd being the only American representative

Left to right is Frank Yusko, Lithuanian champion, and his opponent, Stanley Stasiak, who will meet on the mat at the Grand Opera House tomorrow evening Promoter Paul Bowser expects to match the winner with either Strangler Lewis or Joe Stecher.

Miss Wills has been on the Riviera nine weeks and has played in the women's singles in eight tournaments. She has won six tournaments, and had one forfeited to her. She lost only one tournament, and that at Cannes to Mlle. Lenglen.

In the eight tournaments Miss Wills has won 481 games to her opponents' 109.

TENNIS HITS HIGH PLANE IN FRANCE

By HELEN WILLS.

Monte Carlo (by mail), March 1—The tournament just finished at the La Festa Tennis Club at Monte Carlo marked the height of the tennis season on the Riviera in southern France. With the exception of Mlle Lenglen, all the best lady players were entered in several events. Wonderful weather made the tourney a perfect one.

Little Mlle. Elene Contostavelos, the young Greek player, who has shown remarkable improvement this season, made a fine showing in this tournament. In the semi-final against Mlle. Lili Alvarez, the Spanish player, she won the second set in the match, and lost only to the greater experience of her opponent In the ladies' doubles Mlle. Contostavelos proved a charming partner Her temperament is unusually good for tennis, and she has unlimited courage.

It was with great interest that I met Mlle. Alvarez of Spain in the finals. She defeated Miss Ryan a season or two ago and has stood out among the women players here as one with an all-round game which has every promise of becoming excellent. Her play is sound, the outstanding stroke being an easily produced forehand drive of great power and direction, which is equally good down the line or across court.

Her backhand, while not so fast, is dependable and has perhaps even more angle than the forehand shot. She is planning to participate in the championship of France, and if she does she will, without doubt, reach the round of eight in the ladies' singles.

SCHOOLS END ICE SEASON SATURDAY

By EDDIE DONDERO.

The bugle sounds taps on the schoolboy hockey season this week when nine games will be played on Friday afternoon and Saturday morning at the Arena, finishing the fourth Boston High School League campaign. Not until the final game has ended will the championship be decided.

English, Boston Latin and Dorchester High are all on a par coming down the home stretch with Mechanic Arts right on their heels. From this selection English is the ranking favorite. The Blue and Blue was considered good for not better than second place two weeks ago, but the sudden rise of the Warren avenue sextet has put the dopesters at sea.

The annual English-Latin clash will start the rubber disc rolling, followed by struggles between Dorchester and Commerce, South Boston and Charlestown, Brighton and East Boston, and the finals, with Jamaica Plain and Hyde Park crossing sticks.

After competition on Friday, Dorchester, Boston Latin, South Boston, Hyde Park, East Boston and Charlestown will obtain a little sleep before chasing the puck again on Saturday morning at 7 o'clock. Director Ed Wilson has four games carded for the grand finale.

In the big game Dorchester clashes with Latin, while Trade plays Commerce, South Boston wielders of hockey clubs will oppose Hyde Park and East Boston collides with Charlestown. All of these members of the Hub circuit will get their last lick at the great Winter sport.

CONWAY With RED SOX

Fowler Will Stay
Rothwick Is Comer
Bratchi Is Hitting

By JACK CONWAY

NEW ORLEANS, March 23.—We take the liberty of nominating Chick Fowler for a position with the Red Sox this year. We do not hesitate to state that this six-foot Texan will be retained as a utility infielder He will be prepared to step in at third base if anything should happen to Fred Haney

Fowler also will be a valuable man to have around as a pinch hitter. Last year while with Minneapolis he clouted the ball for an average of .314. He was hitting for around .350 up to the time he became ill in August. He didn't do so well when he got back into the game. Chick is all pepped up again and looks forward to having a big season. In an emergency Fowler could play shortstop or second base.

Jack Conway

HUGH DUFFY and other keen baseball men say Rothrock will develop into one of the greatest shortstops the game has ever known. Rothrock is as fast as a greyhound. He can outfoot any member of the Sox outfit He is also a better hitter than the average shortstop He is not as good a fielder as Dudley Lee, but his game will improve.

WITH experience, Rothrock has a tendency to let the ball play him instead of playing the ball This is a fault common to youngsters breaking into the big show They are a little too cautious but after they gain the necessary confidence they forget all about making errors and go in and scoop up balls with a reckless abandon

Don't be surprised if Rothrock eventually supplants Lee as the regular Sox shortstop Fred Bratchi former White Sox outfielder, is whanging the old apple on the nose in practice here. When Bratchi first broke into the big leagues he looked like one of the most natural batters in the business A shoulder injury upset things. He found it impossible to swing properly at a high ball and of course the wise pitchers fed him on high balls with the result he passed out of the big leagues to Columbus.

This was last night in the Cirque De Paris, when the Spaniard polished off the Englishman in one minute and twenty-five seconds of fighting in which Drake did not show any merit. The 5,000 spectators otherwise gave vent to their indignation over the fiasco by pelting the ring with all kinds of missiles.

PRINCE CAROL WILL NOT RACE HERE THIS YEAR

Paris, March 24 (I N S).—Prince Carol of Rumania will not go to the United States in May to drive in automobile races at Atlantic City because the American Automobile Association has declined to waive the usual formalities in granting the Prince a license as a racing driver Charles Ward of New York announced today as he sailed on the S. S. France.

"Prince Carol is anxious to make his debut on American tracks and had hoped to compete either at Atlantic City or Indianapolis," said Ward

"I shall try to arrange for a license for Prince Carol when I arrive home and when I return to Europe at the end of May for the Grand Prix at San Sebastian, I will endeavor to sign him up for the races in America this Summer and next Autumn."

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER R. HORTON

After the initial shove away of the clubhead from the ball, with the body still facing the ball in its address position, though not rigidly and fixedly held there, the left arm—held all the way close in—should rather reach outward with the club. This greatly promotes the pull against the shoulders and starts them to rotating. As the shoulders rotate the club goes around and up and as it goes upward the wrists may break back some, or the player may let the wrists hold their position until the club, swinging over at the top, draws the wrists into place. The latter practice I like best The player must be very careful to let the club have sufficient time to accomplish this sweep. It takes just so long for the club to describe that half circle and the least hurrying of it beyond the natural speed of the club will probably put a jerk in the thing somewhere.

FIVE BIG BOUTS AT TUOHEY SHOW

If the committee in charge of the testimonial to George Tuohey at the Arena on April 9, were to accept all the requests of wrestling stars for places on the program, the card would be so long that it would take at least two nights to carry it through. B. A. A. BOXING SHOW IS BANNER ATTRACTION TONIGHT

ACTION IN MANY CLASSES

Mickey Travers Decides to Settle Down in Boston

By RINGSIDE.

The sound of flatic fireworks will crash through the dullness of the boxing game tonight at the Boston Athletic Association, Exeter street, Back Bay. The Unicorn Club athletic committee is busy even though the Marathon race may be the most important factor just at present at the Back Bay organization.

Manager Thomas Kanaly is staging the monthly amateur boxing show for the B. A. A. members and their friends, with promise of a bang-up schedule of boxing bouts in the 112-pound class novice and the 126, 138, 147 and 160-pounds open.

In these classes the best of the local simon pures will battle. It is one of the final bouts for the lads in preparation for the National Championships, which are here in the Arena April 8 and 9.

SOLOMON MEETS SHARKEY.

King Solomon, one of the most artful ring performers among the welterweights in the boxing game today, has been substituted for Pat McCarthy against Jack Sharkey at the coming show of the Suffolk A. A., to be staged in Mechanics Building, April 1.

Solomon and Sharkey have graced the ring before at Braves Field, and Sharkey was awarded the decision after ten rounds of hard boxing.

Out of the Spring cleaning dust comes Mickey Travers of Connecticut.

Like his friend, Lou Bogash, he has decided to make Boston his home in the future and is also desirous of getting signed up with any of the featherweights in the country.

Being married, Travers is arranging to bring his wife and child into the Hub, his future home. He is ready to place a forfeit of $2,500 to meet either Herman or Dick "Honeyboy" Finnegan.

Boxing Chatter

St. Mary's Catholic Association of Cambridge will open the doors of their hall for the amateur boxing tournament to be held tomorrow night at the St. Mary's C. A., corner of Prospect and Harvard streets. There will be action galore in the 112, 118, 126, 138, 147, 160 and heavyweight classes.

It matters not what might happen one way or another, the St. Joseph's T. A. S. will still carry on with its amateur boxing shows on Saturday night.

St. Jos's will hold their bouts just the same in the seven championship classes, 112, 118, 126, 138, 147, 160 and heavy weight divisions.

Johnny Drew of Worcester will set Bobby Garcia in the semi-final bout at the Armory, Hartford, on April 5. Paul Berlenbach and Ray Neuman will be in the final attraction.

Johnny Risko is hitting the target of dollars rather successfully. His bout with Berlenbach drew him a purse of $8,500, and after a victory like he had over hammering Paul he might at least double the purse in the next attraction he appears in at Tex Rickard's Garden.

FIGHTS I CAN'T FORGET

by TAD
America's Greatest Boxing Authority

THIS is the first of a series of famous fights covered by Tad, the greatest sporting cartoonist and leading authority on pugilism in this country. Tad has covered all the big fights held in this country for the past thirty years. In this review of prominent battles he will not tell alone of championships, but will refreshen the memories of many of the fans who have witnessed thrilling contests in the smaller clubs.

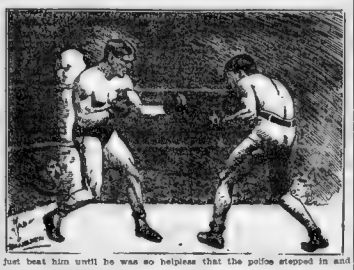

WHEN POLICE STOPPED McGOVERN-HANLON SHINDIG

By using his head and good generalship, Terry McGovern turned what looked like a certain defeat into victory when he beat Eddie Hanlon into a helpless state at Industrial Hall, in Philadelphia, October 10, 1904.

It all happened in the fourth round of the most vicious fight ever seen anywhere, and the boy with the good head won out.

Half a minute before the police jumped into the ring McGovern was lying flat on his back taking the count from a left jolt he got in a hot exchange. Like the experienced ring general that he was, instead of getting up at the count of six and taking a desperate chance, Terry rested on one knee until the count of nine. Then he grabbed Hanlon and hung on until his head was clear.

The latter, instead of measuring his man and taking things coolly, rushed in like a wild mad to finish McGovern, and left an opening which lost him the battle. Terry shot his right to the body. Hanlon curled up, and then, with a volley of terrific rights and lefts to the jaw, McGovern just beat him until he was so helpless that the police stepped in and stopped the slaughter.

Even for such a short fight the Hanlon-McGovern go was the best and fastest ever seen in the Quaker City, and coming back to New York on the train every sport aboard was loud in his praise of both boys. I doubt if there ever was a mill with so much fight in it. Never for a second during those four rounds did the boys stop, and the pace was something terrific. McGovern was the Terrible Terry of old, and carried the fighting to his younger opponent throughout Hanlon did not look to be the Hanlon of old. He was slow, awkward and did not have the stinging punch he carried before.

On the other hand, McGovern was like a panther, always forcing the fighting and ready at all times to take a punch to land one. He made Hanlon's body the target for his attacks and that is how he won out. He weakened the Californian until there was nothing left to do but cover up, and he even failed to do this in the end when he needed it most.

The sound of the bell had hardly died away in the fourth round before Terry had Hanlon groggy. It was in the centre of the ring, and he followed Eddie over to the ropes, swinging with both hands. Hanlon came to in a second and, seeing an opening, jolted Terry on the chin with his left, putting him flat on his back.

The crowd went wild in an instant.

McGovern's seconds were lined up along the ring t' swing water on him and yelling words of wisdom.

The sports were up on chairs and the noise was fierce.

Terry slowly arose at the count of six, got on one knee and then as nine was counted got up and grabbed Hanlon.

The latter was all excitement. Bob Deady, his second, yelled from the corner:

"Take your time; take your time!"

Those around the ring yelled:

"Finish him; finish him!"

Hanlon took his own ideas and swung in all directions, trying to get in a good one. McGovern swung his arms like a windmill and finally cooped Hanlon on the body. He stopped. Terry rushed at him, swinging both hands to the body and jaw, and Hanlon in his weakened condition fell from a slight shove.

He was up again in an instant, but it was useless. He could not protect himself and McGovern was showering blows on his face and body. Hanlon leaned on the post in his corner with his hands at his side, when the police jumped in and stopped one of the greatest fights I ever witnessed.

BRAVES OUT TO SCALP INDIANS TODAY

By NICK FLATLEY

Lakeland, Fla., March 24.—Manager Dave Bancroft steered his Braves into this village today to try to get even for the defeat Tris Speaker's Indians hung on the Tribe here in St. Pete on Monday. David was anxious to win this one, as his team has slumped in the last week or so.

Nick Flatley

The boys have lost three games and four ties since the last victory was registered, and that isn't a pleasing thing for the boy manager to think about nights. There are only two more games on the bill, the one here today, and the finale with the St. Louis Browns at home Saturday.

A coupe of wins will make the Spring showing very impressive, while a pair of losses will be something else again. Dave is sort of happy that the slump came so early. Most teams have a bad spell some time in the Spring, and the Wigwamers will have it out of their system long before the bell rings.

Mister Speaker of Cleveland, still quite a ball lover in spite of years too numerous to mention was quite impressed with his one peek at the Tribal outfit the other day.

"Boston looks like one of the best teams I've seen this Spring," declares Spoke. "The club has confidence, and even when being beaten looks good. It's a much better team than the Braves I saw last Spring. Any club that has half a dozen good pitchers has to be in the race, and from all the reports I get down this way, the Braves have at least that many."

Gossip at Harvard

By TED LYNCH

Howie Burns, the second best sprinter on Coach Eddie Farrell's track squad, will not compete in the running game this Spring. Burns has a fine chance in making a position on Coach Fred Mitchell's ball nine.

Practice in the cage has not been entirely satisfactory this year. Tuesday one manager was knocked unconscious by a batted ball, while Captain Lee Todd and Infielder Bill Ullman are carrying around injuries sustained in the indoor cage.

Tomorrow and Friday will be the date for the annual Harvard boxing tournament that will be held at the Hemingway Gym. Coach Billy Shea promises plenty of action during the two days.

Joe Slocumb, who knows every corner of the Harvard A. A., will probably be the first Harvard supporter to make the annual Spring trip with the ball team.

Next Saturday will be another dull day at Harvard. Soccer is the only sport that will be available for the sport enthusiasts.

'Tubber' Cronin on Base-Running

THIS is the twelfth of a series of stories by college baseball stars on how to play the various positions and how to make good on the diamond. There will be fourteen stories, one each week day. They will prove a baseball education for college, school and sandlot players.

By BILL CONSODINE

A TEAM that has a lot of batting power, real heavy batting power, will get a long way in the run column, but a team that has good stickers who can run the bases and slide their way around from hassock to hassock will lead the league in the run column and the games won list. The Nearly every college ball team has one or two good base stealers, because college baseball, like other college sports, draws upon the track team for some of its men. Syracuse used to have Chet Bowman in the backfield, Boston College drafted Frank Wilson from the track team because he could step right along. Then the Braves took Wilson up to the big leagues.

BOSTON COLLEGE has one of the best base stealers in the college game this year, in the person of Tubber Cronin, the Cambridge boy, who made good in three positions on last year's ball team. Tubber is naturally fast and has a hair trigger brain. In addition, the stocky Cantab is willing to put extra time into scientific study of the stealing game. Every time Pittsburgh and New York plays at the Wigwam, Tubber is there to watch Max Carey and Frank Frisch in action.

"The whole story in base stealing," went on the Boston College star, "as he warmed up to his subject, "is the left leg of the pitcher. Don't leave your base until the pitcher steps on to the slab, then leave, watching that left leg all the time. If the leg goes forward it means that the ball will go toward the plate. If it comes back hurriedly, don't bother looking any longer, make a dive for the base and stay there until conditions are opportune again.

"WITH a good left-hander in the box, the batter can't take as many chances. The lefts has a big advantage on the runner. More men are put out by lefties than by right-handers nowadays. You can take about eight or nine feet lead in a college game. Carey takes more than that, but there are no Careys in college baseball.

"The baserunner has to be able to slide too. Too many times you call is close at second or third and he must hit the dirt. Usually you hit the dirt about three or four feet away from the bag. If the throw is on the outside, hook your slide in back of the bag.

IF it's inside, hook to the outside. The hook is good because it throws the player's body away from the base and only leaves the leg for the baseman to tag. Head first slides are dangerous.

HUB WILL HAVE NEW PRO SIX NEXT YEAR

The success of the American Hockey League as the professional field next year should promote even greater interest in the improved game than that which obtained this season. The fact that two and possibly three professional games a week will be played will furnish hockey followers with plenty of high class competition.

Starting with Boston, New York, Providence and Montreal the new league has a solid foundation. Then with Jersey City, Newark, Spring field and New Haven joining the circuit before next Winter this giant club league should prosper.

George V. Brown of the Boston Arena, who with Leo Dandurand was the prime mover of the American professional Hockey League, has three chances to purchase a team intact and a though he is not the championship

Lynn to Stage Outdoor Boxing in Ball Park

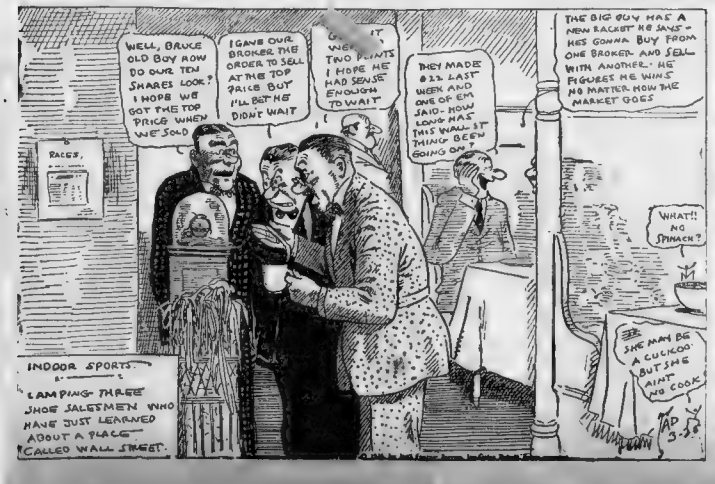

Lynn is to have a new stadium where the New England League is to play its games and the Casino A. C. is making plans to use it for boxing on Saturday afternoons, when the Lynn club is playing away from home. The stadium will have a grandstand and bleachers that will seat between 15,000 and 20,000.

[illegible] G. asks for a budget for $40.60 a week family of seven. As he gives his expenses monthly, I should make a monthly budget, income being $1[illegible] per month. He mentions mortgage interest, but does not say what the taxes are. With his partial figures, I recommend this budget: Shelter (mortgage and taxes), $[illegible]; food, $[illegible]; clothing, $30; saving, $1[illegible]; operating (including fuel, light, etc.), $[illegible]; personal (school course, etc.), $15.93.

Mrs. E. C.—Indeed, I do think you are rich with those two lovely children, but you are right in thinking you should be saving something for their education. You seem to be managing very well, and having many comforts, but I suggest "paring off" somewhere so you can save $3 a week out of your $30 income. You know best where you can do it; perhaps running the car a little less, or making over clothes, or cutting [illegible] on food luxuries, though not [illegible] milk or cereals. Best wishes to you all.

Home Budget Editor: I am a widow with four growing girls and pay $35 rent. All living expenses have to be paid out of $92 a month, a soldier's pension. At times it seems almost impossible to go on, especially when sickness comes.

MRS. A. M. M.

In your place, I think my first step would be to move into the country, for your money would go much farther. But if this is out of the question, try to "squeeze out" $5 a month to put into the co-operative bank for a rainy day. You will receive an excellent rate of interest, and can always get it out if you need it, or borrow on it for emergencies.

Far from being pushed aside by the younger set, she finds a full, rich life of her own. That is, if her health is good.

Thousands of women of middle age say they owe their vigor and health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Those who have learned through their own experience the merit of this dependable medicine are enthusiastic in recommending it to their friends and neighbors.

A woman in Nebraska was troubled with headaches for fifteen years. She writes, "I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have felt my health steadily improving. Today, after taking your medicine for almost a year and a half, I believe I can say the headaches have left me for it is seven months since I had the last one. I am continuing the Vegetable Compound. I am feeling fine now."

The Thrilling Love Story of a Boston Girl and the Husband Who Strayed

week ago [illegible]?" she asked Sylvia one afternoon as she sat beside her bed [illegible]

"What do you mean?" [illegible] you wonder where he was the night the baby was born?" Sylvia asked puzzled. She had supposed that Mother Phelps had reached Ranny on the telephone and that he had come along with her and Dr. Buzzard. "Why, wasn't he here?"

Aunt Agony raised her sparse brows. "You know, of course, that he didn't show up here until breakfast time the next morning, don't you?" she asked [illegible]. "Surely he made some explanation, didn't he?"

Sylvia pulled the sheet with her nervous fingers. "I didn't know [illegible] he came home," she faltered, not looking at her aunt. "Sometimes they play cards until pretty late."

Suspicion Begins

"And drink themselves sodden besides, I've no doubt." Aunt Agony's words snapped in the air like [illegible] whips. "As they say, 'Grape-juice kills more than grape-shot.' [illegible] Ranny looked half dead when he walked in here that morning! I was ashamed to let Dr. Buzzard see him, I declare, I was."

She set her lips and went on rubbing the flannel bands between her hands.

Suddenly she looked up at Sylvia, who lay staring at her.

"I hope you're not cross with me for saying a word against your Ranny, my dear girl," she said. "I only do it for your own good. [illegible] word can come out of a good heart,' you know. 'And sweet words [illegible] no parsnips.'"

"Yes, Aunt," Sylvia answered without thinking. Her brain was busy with that piece of news—with the fact that Ranny had stayed out all night.

She knew that Eddie Carter's poker game broke up always at midnight, now that he was married to Fay. For Fay insisted upon it—she had told Eddie in no gentle terms that she was not going to spend her nights sitting up for him.

But perhaps Ranny had been playing cards with some other crowd that night, and yet Sylvia knew that there was no other crowd anywhere that he ever did play cards with. Then, where had he been until 7 o'clock the next morning?

The question went around and around and around in her head all the rest of the afternoon. Where had he been? Where had he been? Where could he have been?

She made up her mind to ask him that very night.

At half-past six when the baby was all tucked up in the breakfast room that had been turned into a nursery he came.

Ranny's Queer

She could hear him moving about in The Nest for fully half an hour before he came in to see her, rustling the newspaper, humming, "I want to go where you go—do what you do," to himself, tossing a word or two to Aunt Agony, in his deep, [illegible]-loved voice.

"Why doesn't he come in to say [illegible] to me?" she wondered as the minutes ticked by. "He knows that [illegible] here all day just waiting for him to come home."

It seemed to her that he didn't [illegible] to come to her, and not for [illegible] would she call to him, beg him to come.

Finally she sang out to Aunt Agony. "When Ranny comes home ask him to bring me the evening paper, won't you? Dr. Buzzard says I can read now."

"Why, Ranny's here already!" Aunt Agony's voice came shrilly from the little kitchen, where she was frying chops that sizzled loudly in the pan. "Ran-nee! Ran-nee! Take the paper in to Sylvia."

And then it was five minutes more before he appeared in the doorway. He looked guilty.

"Hello! I thought you were asleep," he said, laying the folded paper on the bed.

She stretched out her slim arm and took hold of his hand. "Aren't you going to kiss me?" she asked, her dark blue eyes on his face.

There was no coquetry in her question. It was a pathetic plea. For something told her that he had not intended to kiss her. Either he had forgotten to do it or for some [illegible] reason [illegible]

[illegible]

How pale she was, she thought. Perhaps that was why Ranny hadn't wanted to kiss her. It was the fresh, healthy-looking, colorful type of beauty that he liked, she remembered.

Sylvia Hopes

Ah well, soon she would be [illegible] and fresh-colored [illegible] sweetheart [illegible] not the frail thing she had been for months.

The thought [illegible] through the weeks that followed.

* * *

She seemed to see less and less of Ranny during the next [illegible] months.

For one thing he developed [illegible] for the movies. Every night after dinner he would show signs of restlessness, fidgeting [illegible] yawning noisily and stretching [illegible] self in his chair.

Then he would say, "I ought to get out and take a turn around the block or I won't be able to sleep. Maybe I'll go to a movie." And he would be off, with no more excuse than that.

"I ought to get someone in to stay with the baby so I could go out with him," she told herself one night when eleven o'clock came and no [illegible] with it. "It's not a good thing for a husband to run around alone."

But she knew she couldn't afford to pay [illegible] mother's helper. She was running into debt [illegible] and Ranny said that fifty dollars a week was every cent he could give her. Most of the time he provided her with less than that.

So when she came right down to brass tacks and copper pennies there was nothing to do but to let Ranny go out, while she stayed home with Ranny, Junior.

It was on the morning of the Fourth of July that Ranny announced that he was going away for the day.

"Dad's giving a picnic in Duxbury for [illegible] help, and I [illegible] to go," he said, looking away from her. "Where have you hidden my Palm Beach suit? I never know where any of my clothes are any more."

Sylvia looked at him, wondering whether he was telling the truth. For some reason she didn't believe him.

For one thing, if Father Phelps were giving a picnic, she was sure that Mother Phelps or Lolly would have mentioned it to her. She had talked to them [illegible] yesterday.

And besides, there was a certain [illegible] about Ranny's [illegible] He did not look [illegible] was telling the truth [illegible] He looked [illegible] his wife.

She wanted to turn and face him [illegible] ask him to tell her where he really was going, but she couldn't.

So with her eyes blurred with tears she searched through the clothes closet for his Palm Beach suit.

While he was taking his shower she put all his valuables from his blue serge suit into the pockets of the white one, and under the flap of his billfold she found a tiny [illegible] handkerchief with an "M" worked in one corner. It didn't [illegible] her at all.

It only made her think of another woman's handkerchief that she had found in Ranny's car months ago, the one that she had returned to Fay Shirley. He had been in love with Fay, then.

And suddenly Sylvia guessed at the truth. He was in love once more with someone—someone whose initial was "M." Or, if he wasn't in love with her, he was certainly having [illegible] affair of some sort with [illegible]

That was the reason he went out every [illegible] after supper and stayed [illegible] That was the reason [illegible] drew Sylvia close to him and kissed her in that fiery, passionate way of his.

The little room with its blue furniture and its sunshine-colored curtains seemed to spin around Sylvia, whirling her with it. She was sick and dizzy, as seasickness might have made her.

She laid the billfold on the dresser and went into the tiny room where the baby lay sleeping in the warm little crib. She locked the door behind her and dropped down on the floor.

She couldn't think clearly.

"I'm knocked silly," she said to herself. "Even if he doesn't care for me he might be decent because of the baby."

When Ranny came to the door to say goodby to her she didn't answer him, and after rattling the door knob softly for a minute or two he tiptoed away.

The door of The Nest closed quietly behind him.

The day passed—how, Sylvia never clearly remembered. There were intervals when she fed the baby, changed his clothes and put him into his bed.

Presently it was seven o'clock, then half-past nine, then midnight. It began to rain wildly.

Ranny out in this storm in his thin Palm Beach suit with the girl whose initial was "M." What was she like, that girl? Small and dainty and perfumed like her handkerchief?

The baby whimpered and Sylvia went [illegible] room to turn him on his side.

His small hand waved in the air and fell on his mother's hand like a caress.

"He's sorry for me," Sylvia thought, and she leaned over the tiny thing and whispered in his ear.

"Don't you feel sorry for [illegible] mother [illegible]" [illegible] "We [illegible] [illegible] even if he [illegible] forgotten us."

Then she straightened [illegible] and [illegible]

The Pied Piper

Couldn't His Name Very Well Be Dan?

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY

"THE Pied Piper of Hamelin came over the meadows in faery-tale land and piped away the little children of the village—so sweet was his music. They trooped out behind him, and over the hills, and they never did come back. And in Hamelin their mothers and fathers wept. There is a Pied Piper with golden gleaming hair, a white body, and sea-blue eyes, with a passion-flower behind his ear, who comes a-piping in this little world—and it isn't a faery tale! And when the little maids hear his music passing by, silver and seductive as the drip of pale honey, they shake what they have from their busy laps and out of their home-gardens they go and follow him over the world. And they never come back. And [illegible] because they know that [illegible] child no more [illegible] will never come back again! [illegible] your ears [illegible] longer."

Making of a Husband

By Ann Lisle

"YOU'D better sleep it off," I said as calmly and gently as I could. "The morning brings counsel."

But what counsel can the morning bring? What does a woman owe a man when he has let himself be maimed—has sacrificed his art for her? Who deserves more of Jeanie—the husband who has failed her twice—or the man she has cost so much?

Long ago when first I recognized that there was a "Jeanie-Nick problem" I realized also that Jeanie was going to express herself when she found out what it was that she wanted to express. Jeanie told me over and over that Nicholas Perry could take care of himself. That didn't sound as if she had any deep feeling for him. Her attitude now doesn't indicate that there is such a thing as "love" involved.

But Nicholas Perry is a painter. He froze his hands in an effort to take care of the uncertain and volatile Jeanie.

This gives Jeanie a problem.

It looks as if she began her flirtation of friendship or whatever it is to be called because she knew of Pat's affair with Brooke De Courcey and felt free to punish him as she choose. Once she told me that if Pat offended a second time—as he had done at the time she separated from him—she would leave him, and this time forever. Jeanie made it clear then that she did not purpose to spend her life in forgiving Pat for his escapades. And the Brooke De Courcey affair was a flagrant and unforgivable one, in which Jim tried to keep the ugly truth from Jeanie on the supposition that she couldn't forgive it. So when she discovered the truth, and realized that she had been shunning Jim as if he were actually Brooke's murderer, Jeanie must have had a terrible time readjusting herself to the ugly facts.

Then came Nicholas Perry, artist and handsome Viking of a man. His interest must have flattered Jeanie under any circumstances.

"How should I wash rayon?" women ask us

ONE WOMAN WRITES: "Last week I purchased two lovely rayon undervests, at a very attractive price. Now, I want to know how to wash them since I have heard that rayon is hard to launder. Won't you please tell me if it is safe in Lux?"

RAYON is a new kind of textile fibre, the first man has succeeded in creating. It is entirely different from silk or wool or cotton. And more sensitive to laundering than any one of these three!

To help women avoid unfortunate experiences with washing rayon, the largest soap manufacturers in the world—the makers of Lux—experimented in their laboratories till they found what they believe is the safest way of all to care for it.

When rayon is wet it loses a great deal of its strength (some grades more than others). This strength comes back as soon as the fabric dries. Any treatment but the gentlest, most careful, seriously affects the delicate fibres.

Never wring, never twist, never rub rayon. Rubbing with cake soap may ruin it. For when wet the fibres are temporarily weakened so that even light pressure may break them apart.

The safest, gentlest way to wash rayon is in sparkling, bubbling Lux suds! With Lux there is no rubbing to harm delicate fibres. Its tissue thin flakes dissolve immediately, making a bowlful of wonderfully cleansing, gentle suds. You know from using Lux for your dainty silks and perishable woolens that it won't harm anything that water alone won't injure.

* * * *

Follow the directions below when you next wash rayon—they tell you the safest way. Lever Brothers Co., Cambridge, Mass.

The safest way to wash rayon

WHIP up a tablespoonful of Lux in lukewarm water. Take off your rings—the prongs might tear the fibres. A rough finger nail, too, may catch in the fabric and cause damage.

Plunge your underthings into these fluffy, bubbling, pure Lux suds. Swirl them about, gently pressing the suds through the fabric. Never rub — above all things, never rub with a cake of soap! Then squeeze out the suds — never wring—and rinse several times in lukewarm water.

To dry, wrap the garment in a towel and squeeze out as much water as possible, do not twist. Then spread on a towel and pull into shape or hang the garment lengthwise over a clothesline or rack. Never use clothespins. Never dry in excessive heat.

For rayon garments which require pressing, iron across the weave with a warm, not hot, iron.

Now the big new package, too

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

CHAPERONS are rapidly becoming passe. Nowadays when you go out with a girl you have to take along a fellow [illegible] the chaperon.

MEN don't object to them any more. They need somebody to carry the flasks and cigarettes.

SOME girls demand them. One dame was so proper she took a chaperon with her on her honeymoon.

SHE said she'd feel safer going through tunnels.

CHAPERONS are becoming scarce in the big cities. They can't stand the late hours.

BESIDES, a fellow usually has to take somebody else along to watch the chaperon.

ONE guy went out with a girl the other evening and he was so dumb that the chaperon had to give him lessons.

HE took her along three of four times in order to learn something.

BUT even then he was over two weeks getting his diploma.

HE was so slow that when his girl told him her hands were cold he went out and got her a hot water bag.

HE was dying to kiss her, but he was the kind of a fellow who took "no" for an answer.

HE wouldn't even struggle.

THE chaperon had to do his arguing for him.

DAILY SHORT STORY

RELATIVE VALUE

By Jack Woodford

MR. MELBOURNE was much upset by the news that the head of the firm was to visit the Chicago branch. Not that Mr. Melbourne, in his capacity as local manager, did not have everything in excellent shape. That wasn't what worried him.

The fact of the matter was that he had everything in much better shape than it had ever before been in the whole history of the business.

It was the personal reputation of Mr. Brice, the president, that worried him. While an extraordinarily capable business man, the president had discovered that, after all, we only live once, and that not long, and he was quite determined that he would not, as Oscar Wilde put it, "Die of a sort of creeping common sense and discover when it is too late that the only things one never regrets are one's mistakes.

Prettier Than Ever

Mr. Melbourne was thirty-five, and at thirty he had married one of the few really pretty women left in Chicago. After five years of married life she was prettier than before, which is, of course, a miracle in this day of cigarettes, sublimated furniture polish and self-inflicted St. Vitus spasm called the Charleston.

Of course, in nobody in the world did Mr. Melbourne have more faith than in his pretty little wife, but, you see, the trouble was that he had once been a newspaper reporter and during that time had gotten around and met quite a few people.

In common with all men who have pretty wives, Mr. Melbourne was forced to be very strong, in theory, for all of the middle-class conventions, and also in common with all men who have pretty wives, he disliked intensely handsome wealthy men who had no pretty wives of their own to give them that "Hurrah for the conventions," feeling; hence his anxiety at the coming of Mr. Brice, whom he must, by some manner of means, entertain.

This, however, was a most difficult proposition. There was only one way in which Mr. Brice could be amused; and that was by the company of a pretty woman—anything else would bore him horribly—so Mr. Melbourne had been informed by every other member of the organization with whom he had ever talked on the subject. And, to make matters worse, he knew that one reason for Mr. Brice's forthcoming visit was that he wished to consider appointing his Chicago branch manager to an extremely responsible position at the New York office, which position would mean a considerable increase in income and other emoluments, in the way of unlimited authority and prestige ad infinitum.

In a Dilemma

The more Mr. Melbourne thought the thing over, the more pricked he felt by the horns of his dilemma. He couldn't possibly, take Mr. Brice out with two other women, for that might get Mr. Melbourne in wrong with his wife—and no man wants to get in wrong with his wife—if she is beautiful; she may take a unique revenge, than which there is no uniquer.

At last he managed to figure out something which he thought might work fairly well. Mrs. Melbourne, among other undoubted accomplishments, made a charming dinner guest. He would take her and Mr. Brice to the wildest and jazziest and Charlestonesque of the roadhouses on the outskirts of Chicago, and there, during the course of an evening, Mr. Bruce cold be prevented from expiring of boredom by the presence of the vivacious Mrs. Melbourne; the surroundings would be such as to please Mr. Brice's flair for surroundings, and he would therefore be probably fairly well satisfied.

Of course, it was dangerous—at least it appealed to an ex-newspaper man as being such—but, he, Mr. Melbourne, would be right there at the table to keep his eyes, his ears, even his intuitions open to steer the conversation into safe channels while keeping a sharp lookout for mines, torpedoes and depth bombs. Surely Mr. Brice would realize that there were a few women in the world tha the had no right to.

So far, so good; but, alas, alack, for the plans of mice and men which gang not oft, but darn near always awry in the case of the latter.

At the station that night, Mr. Melbourne met Mr. Brice, who cheered up tremendously at the sight of Mrs. Melbourne, though the faintest flicker of disappointment crossed his genial face when she was introduced to him as "The Missus!"

Probably he was thinking that her being the "missus" was about as fair and equable as the presenting of a sunset to one particular sunset fan.

In the car, on the way uptown, Mr. Melbourne explained that he had engaged a table at a roadhouse and that they three would go there immediately after dinner.

Too Bad

"Oh" mused Mr. Brice, looking dreamily at the beautiful Chicago landscape, consisting of elevated pillars, sign boards, million dollar movie palaces and other exquisite obects of an equally aesthetic nature.

"That's really too bad."

"Too bad!" mourned Mr. Melbourne in surprise, "why I thought—" Mr. Brice seemed about to explain, but he remained quiet on the subject until after dinner.

"You know, Melbourne," he began, when it was time to start for the roadhouse, "I had figured on your going back to New York with me tomorrow to take charge of the office. Be a big thing for you; eventually means that you'll take my place when I retire from active control of the company. I was in hopes that you could clear up all the loose ends in the Chicago office tonight and leave with me in the morning on the early train—in fact, I had set my heart upon your doing so."

"I'll be glad to," agreed Mr. Melbourne. "We'll go right down there now and——"

"Oh! I wouldn't think of disappointing Mrs. Melbourne, and, besides, I wouldn't be anything but a nuisance to you down there. You just run along and I'll go ahead with your wife. Darn shame to spoil your evening this way, but I'll make up to you for it in New York, by inviting all of the department heads to meet their new boss, and throwing the classiest dinner at the speediest night club in town to do it at. Now, just you mosey along like a good boy. I can drive your car, used to have one like it myself, and we'll leave for New York tomorrow. You won't mind taking a taxi back downtown, will you?"

Mr. Melbourne did some mental figuring.

A woman was a woman—even a very pretty one was and never could be anything except a woman.

A job was a job. And such a job as lay before him represented an infinite variety of things, not the least of which was endless opportunities for taking leases upon the eyries in Riverside Drive apartments, consisting of one room, mail box and elevator service, to be tenanted upon the duration of the good behavior of the occupant.

He stopped the taxi and entered a phone booth, calling upthe chief clerk.

"Hello, Hopkins, that you? This is me. I'm going to New York in the morning. Hop down to the office, clear up everything, and have anything that needs my signature ready for me by 3 or 4 a. m. I'll be in then to sign them—going to take charge of the New York office; I'll see you are properly reimbursed for this extra work."

Leaving the drug-store in high spirits, he got back into the taxi, stopping just long enough to say to the driver:

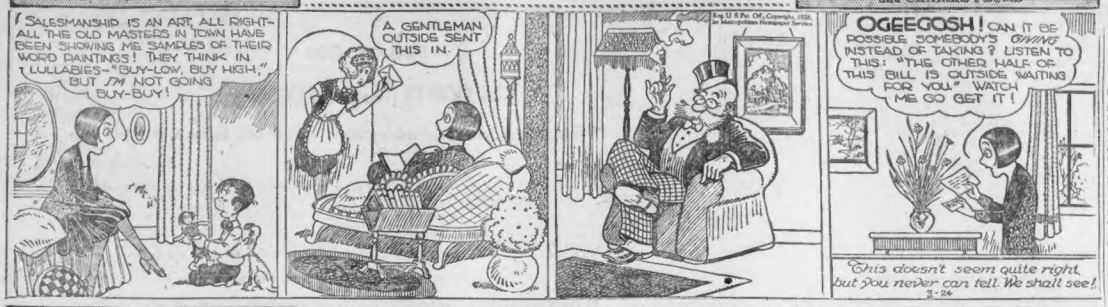

"The Golden Duck—and hurry."

Which only goes to show that once having been in the newspaper business, one knows how to make the best of things.

COOK-COOS by Ted Cook

GENERAL SMEDLEY BUTLER, ex-police chief of Philadelphia and now commandant of marines at San Diego, ordered the arrest and court-martial of his host, Colonel Alexander Williams, for serving cocktails at a dinner in honor of General Butler.

A fellow with a name like "Smedley" is apt to do anything.

* * *

Following are a few expressions of opinion:

* * *

Mr. Earl Carrol, prominent prohibitionist: "It takes courage to do what General Butler has done. In fact, it takes more than courage. I am too overcome by emotion to say more."

* * *

Mr. Low Cody, secretary of the Anti-Saloon League: "We will all stand back of General Butler from now on. It is just such an attitude that this country needs to make America safe for hypocrisy."

* * *

Mr. Tex Rickard, president of the Reform League: "Although I am unfamiliar with the facts, offhand I would say that General Butler is the kind of a man who can be trusted."

* * *

In respect for General Butler's precedent citizens are urged to act as follows:

1. When motoring with friends watch the speedometer, and if the car exceeds the limit hail the first motor cop you meet.

2. If you are a house guest, get up early and swoop around the cellar. If you discover home brew walk, don't run, to the nearest prohibition enforcement bureau.

Waked early this day and fell into high words with my hen partridge over what daye of the week it be, and she did say it was a Monday and I did say it was of a Friday. Never in my life see dame so obstinate, and when she offer to lay me a wager I did take it, and gladly, albeit on arising I did fetch the morning papers, and gast not shew them to my dove until I had taken scissors and cut off the date line, which, methinks, was a slipographical error.

There is apparently no basis for the conclusion that Winnie Teaze was at one time enamored of Will Hays. In fact, all the legible Teazeleans point to her utter scorn of everything the Czar stood for. Let us, for the moment, pause to thumb the mute evidence on this point—a letter now in possession of the Missouri School of Mines, Concord, Mass., which says:

Dear Sir:

Yours affectionately,
WINNIE TEAZLE,

The letter was written in a sweet, shrill hand, as though the writer had parted her lips and was about to speak. Apparently she thought better of it, as a shaft of sunlight on her pale hair turned it into Autumn gold.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use for only 75 cents. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time, by morning all gray hair has disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair is restored beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

QUICK RELIEF FROM STOMACH DISORDER
Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thief! Is What He Calls Headache

Brooklyn, Mr. Richard A. Davidson writes—"A headache is a thief, because if I figured up the number of days I was unable to do my best work on account of a sick headache, it would amount to hundreds of dollars. I have found the best relief for sick headache is Carter's Little Liver Pills. They have rarely failed to clear my attacks and they tone up my stomach and bowels in fine shape.

Chronic sick headache is many times irregular bowel movement. Try Carter's Little Liver Pills. Druggists, 25c. Use red package, this recommend it.

FOXY GRANDPA'S INTERESTING BEDTIME STORY

"FOXY GRANDPA," said Bobby, as we rode along in a rickshaw through the streets of Pekin, "the people over here are always talking about their ancestors, have you noticed that?"

I laughed and said:

"Yes, Bobby, and have you noticed what great respect the Chinese children pay to their parents?"

"I have, Foxy Grandpa, and I know a lot of boys and girls at home that aren't nearly as good as the Chinese boys and girls that way. I wonder why it is?"

"It's their religion, Bobby," I said. "It all came through the teachings of a great man by the name Confucius."

As we sped along in our rickshaw, which, you know, is a kind of a carriage pulled by a coolie, I told Bobby what I knew of Confucius.

"Confucius," I started, "is thought to have been born about 550 years before Christ and he had a very distinguished father who was a brave soldier and descended from a great emperor who had founded the Chinese empire two thousand years before.

"So good was Confucius and so just that it was said that he nearly put an end to crime in China. He did this by teaching the people how to live, so that there would be no necessity for being punished for wrong doing.

"Then something happened which made Confucius very unhappy about the state of things in his country, so he commenced traveling over China from State to State with his disciples and teaching the people how to live, and in writing books, which were the foundation of the religion afterward called Confucianism.

"He lived to be a very old man, and like many other great men, he was not as great in the minds of the people who lived during his lifetime as those who lived after him.

"Here is one of the teachings of Confucius which it would be well for all to remember:

"'Let young people show filial piety at home, respectfulness toward their elders when away from home. Let them be cautious and truthful, their love going out freely toward all, cultivating good will to men. And if in such a walk there be time and energy left for other things, let them employ it in wise reading and acquiring accomplishments in art and in music.'"

"Foxy Grandpa," said Bobby, "that sounds just like the commandment, 'Honor thy father and thy mother,' doesn't it?"

'L' STOCK IS IN NO GREAT DEMAND

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor

House Ways and Means Committee tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. holds public hearing on the Boston Elevated State control bill. This measure provides for extension of the present State control period for thirty years with a reduction on the common dividend rental from 6 per cent. to 5 per cent. The lower dividend rental is that which was originally paid in the early stages of State control.

* * *

Representative Francis X. Coyne of Dorchester denounces the thirty-year extension as a scheme to permit stockholders of the Elevated to "commit added larceny from the pockets of the car riders to the extent of over $100,000,000." Opinions Francis X. Coyne about the future of the "L" are many and conflicting. The writer has not heard from any stockholders who favor accepting the bill opposed by Representative Coyne.

* * *

In the meantime, "L" common stock is in no great demand. It has sold this year as high as 82½, a low of 78 and, as this is written, last changed hands at 78, the lowest price for the year.

* * *

At the beginning of the current year, the twenty largest stockholders of the Boston Elevated (and the list is subject to constant change) were:

Most important changes in holdings of Boston Elevated stocks among the twenty largest reported this year, compared with their holdings a year ago, follow: R. L. Day at December 31, 1924, held 1,436 shares common and 525 shares first preferred, as well as about the same amount as of December 31, 1925, of the other classes.

* * *

Greatest change in Kidder, Peabody & Co.'s holdings is in the common, which a year earlier amounted to 1,907 shares. John J. Hill on December 31, 1924, showed 3,031 shares common and but 341 second preferred shares.

* * *

Holdings of common stock by Elmer H. Bright & Co. at end of 1924 were 3,787 shares. Holdings of Curtis & Sanger on same date were 1,048 common, 216 preferred, 190 first preferred and 286 second preferred. Whitney & Elwell's holdings at close of 1924 were 1,001 common, 20 preferred, 139 first preferred, and 43 second preferred.

E. V. Jaeger of Hornblower & Weeks, who over a long period, has shown forecasts that proved consistently correct, says:—"We still see no reason to buy stocks. Our policy has been one of liquidation since February 11th and the only reason we would chance waiting for better prices now is the possibility of normal seasonal improvement in business which could affect better price levels in some directions, no matter what its extent or duration. Nevertheless, important stocks are here and there breaking their previous low points and, if long of these issues, we would not chance holding them further when this occurs.

* * *

Prof. W. Z. Ripley of Harvard, who recently started the crusade against issuing stocks without voting power, will be pleased to note that Pres. Simmons of New York Stock Exchange before Mississippi Valley Group of Investment Bankers' Association at St. Louis said: "While the Stock Exchange has made no positive and irrevocable rule against listing non-voting common stocks, it intends to inquire into such issues when they apply for listing, and will refuse to open the facilities of the market to issues wherein an abuse of this practice seems likely to occur."

FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

The strong man who has emerged at the head of the $240,000,000 Tide Water Oil-Associated consolidation is only 45. He has been an oil man less than nine years. Before that he was a lawyer in the oil territory of Pennsylvania. Before that he was a Princeton football player, an amateur boxer, and all-round, sturdy youth.

Once, in later years, when he was head of a force of 5,000 men, he faced some of them at a gathering when a strike threatened. After listening to emphatic speeches from the men's leaders, he stood up and shot this back at them:

"I am not afraid of any of you. I am not afraid of all of you—" The men glanced at one another and glowered at him while he paused. Then he finished his sentence, "for I like you and I trust you."

There was no strike.

* * *

Axtell J. Byles is the president of the new Tide Water Associated Oil Company, combination of the old Tide Water and the Associated Oil Companies, with vast oil reserves and refining facilities on the West Coast, extensive oil properties in mid-continent, and a gigantic refining plant on the Atlantic seaboard with a "flexible pipe line" connecting the two coasts, in the shape of a fleet of tankers plying through the Panama Canal.

Mr. Byles, who has headed Tide Water, now becomes commander-in-chief of an army of more than 15,000 workers.

* * *

How has he attained such place and responsibilities at forty-five?

He had the advantage of being born at Titusville, Pa., the nursery of oil men, and of having a father who was attorney for various oil and gas companies. He had the advantage, too, of a Princeton degree and of a legal degree from the law school of the University of Pittsburgh. Also of a stocky, broad-shouldered body.

"The success of an enterprise depends upon getting the right man into the right place," Mr. Byles remarked when prodded into giving this first interview about his activities. "I was lucky. I was lucky in having a legal training, for a lawyer has ideal opportunity to analyse human qualities. He is inquisitive by training and perhaps by nature. He questions, he studies, he appraises. The lawyer must get the facts—all the facts—first and reach his conclusions afterwards. The business man should do the same thing.

"I was lucky, too, in joining a fine, old company just when the founders and upbuilders were ready to lighten their load. They were looking around for a young man, and they happened to pick me. If Tide Water has made and is making some progress, 90 per cent. is due to the men associated with me.

Pullman Company, enjoying the unique distinction of being the only one of its kind in the United States, not only supplies sleeping, parlor and dining cars to railroads, but also operates through a subsidiary, railroad car manufacturing plants; wheel, malleable and brass foundries.

It is an Illinois corporation, incorporated in 1867, and has a dividend and earning record over a range of years which is almost unparalleled.

The company has never had any preferred stock or funded debt, the $135,000,000 authorized and outstanding capital stock of $100 par value being its only obligation. Gross sales of 1925 (year ending December 31, 1925) were $80,198,067, compared with $72,757,836 in 1924, leaving a net after taxes of $12,546,004, as against $7,755,368 in the previous year.

On July 31, 1925, the end of the company's fiscal year, net working capital was over $27,000,000, and government securities and cash totalled more than the current liabilities. Dividends have been paid at the annual rate of 8 per cent for the past 25 years.

Despite the wage increase granted to porters on February 10, 1926, which will cost the company $1,000,000 a year, new orders for the first five weeks of 1926 exceeded 2,600 cars of all kinds, and no diminution in earnings is looked for.

with Germany to make that production profitable.

OUR STEEL companies are not suffering yet, however. Mr. Schwab's Bethlehem Steel earned more than thirteen millions last year and Judge Gary's big United States Steel earned more than ninety millions net.

It earned enough to pay $13 a share on the common stock, and the company has more than five hundred million dollars in cash reserve.

If things do not get worse, the big steel company might pay out $100 cash per share of common stock, and then go on earning $12 a share. But don't let that make you speculate in steel stocks, or anything else. Big cash reserves are necessary and things may get worse.

A HIGHLY philanthropic Chinese merchant, Lock-Ah-Tam, lived in Liverpool, where he had married a Welsh girl who gave him two daughters. They were twenty and seventeen years old, when, in the midst of a family celebration, for no apparent reason, he killed them and their mother.

The British, who take murder seriously, therefore have comparatively few murders, hanged Mr. Lock-Ah-Tam yesterday. He said: "I shall shortly join my loved ones, and they will understand."

By this time Lock-Ah-Tam is in Heaven. If he is ever going there, and if he is there, the loved ones must be glad that there is no marrying or death in that abode.

THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS presents a fairly accurate imitation of Europe before the war started. Trouble in Europe was built on alliances. France and Russia had agreed that they would unite against Germany if anything happened. And they did.

THE SAME CONDITION now exists in the League of Nations. France seeks for allies in the League to offset the entrance of Germany. Does the United States want anything to do with that kind of a League of Nations, or with the World Court, which is the back door to the League?

AMBASSADOR HOUGHTON is criticised in the Senate, and elsewhere, because he tells the truth to the American people about conditions in Europe. Had he whispered his private information into the ears of a few carefully chosen financiers he wouldn't be criticized. Many of our "better minds" are convinced that the less the American people know the better.

FRENCH FRANCS fell yesterday below three and one-half cents each, a long drop from pre-war value, nineteen and three-tenths cents. Speculators who expect the French franc to follow the German mark will be disappointed.

With reasonable economy in armaments, an end to financing Poland and other Allies, and with reasonable taxation, the French will bring the franc back as rapidly as they choose. To sell France short is dangerous.

MONEY TALKS, and says it thinks light wine and beer, or at least light beer, will come back. Old breweries are bought by far-seeing gentlemen and will be put in condition to produce real beer that the human system can absorb and digest, instead of the "needle" poison sold by injecting poisonous alcohol into non-alcoholic beer.

CITIZENS BUY and drink beer "with a kick." The kick comes from denatured alcohol sold at gasoline stations to prevent freezing. Bootleggers redistill the non-freezing product, take out part of the poison and inject the rest into the beer.

Young Men, Lay Up TIME as You Would Lay Up MONEY

If You Want Leisure and Pleasure Later, Work Hard Now

We all talk and think about saving money for use in the future.

Money is important. TIME is more important.

You cannot enjoy your money or anything else unless you have THE TIME TO ENJOY IT.

Remember that an hour saved now by making one hour do the work of two is better than a dollar saved now by making one dollar do the work of two.

You know that if you have five dollars in your pocket and spend two and a half, letting that supply your needs, you have two and a half left to spend later.

Do you realize that if you do now in two hours and a half the work that you would do ordinarily, lazily and in leisurely fashion in FIVE hours, you will have two and a half hours to spend in leisure later?

Benjamin Franklin said: "Employ thy time well, if thou meanest to gain leisure."

The hours that you let drift by, waiting for the time to "pass," watching the clock, are hours that you will bitterly regret later.

If you stood by a stream of money you wouldn't wait for it "to pass"—you would dip it up and keep it.

We are standing by a stream of time, and many of us are waiting for "it to pass," instead of dipping it up and using it eagerly.

Store that quotation from Franklin in your memory. It is a good one.

That you may have leisure and pleasure later you must use your time well now.

Every day that you really do two days' work in one means one day to spend as you please later. And when you get older days of leisure will be very valuable.

As a matter of fact, a day saved now may mean not only one day, but a month or a year of leisure later on. For it is the hard work that makes the GOOD WORKER, and the good worker goes ahead. The man who says to himself, "I will make this day a double day or a triple day," is the man who will go ahead, outstripping those around him that watch the time pass.

Work now, when working ought to be your pleasure; play later, when age will make leisure agreeable and necessary.

A thousand young men will read this saying of Ben Franklin.

Ninety will say, "That is good; I shall remember it."

About ten will really remember it and ACT upon it.

And later on the ten will be envied by the nine hundred and ninety—the ten controlling others, controlling "heir own time, and controlling the nine hundred and ninety still slaves on a salary, blaming everything but themselves, and they themselves alone to blame.

Cape Cod Folks

Forming in Line Before the Paying Teller

There is no need to consult a clairvoyant to know where the next boom in real estate is going to center, for the facts are faintly whispered by the records in the Registry of Deeds, at Barnstable.

Since the middle of last December, more than 3,500 parcels of Cape Cod realty have changed hands. Now, with the frost barely out of the ground, builders at Falmouth and Hyannis are calling for bricklayers, carpenters and other artisians. For the coming Summer, at least, activity is expected to center about these two places. The present demand is for brick-front one-story business structures, accommodating many small shops.

Real estate operators who have been combing the district report that each succeeding day finds it more difficult to lay hands upon available and desirable property. Your Cape Codder is not the man to be stampeded. He knows how to "hold on." A shrewd trader, he appears to be disposed to wait. Well, if anything CAN be held to be certain, on this planet, it is that DESIRABLE Cape Cod real estate will be worth much more before it is worth much less.

Little Baby Octopuses

Doing NICELY, Thanks

In old days, when a MILLION dollars was taken seriously, men shuddered and the Government "got busy," much agitated by the fact that Standard Oil was first supposed to be worth a BILLION dollars. Fiercely the so-called "Octopus" was chopped up into many little pieces. But a healthy octopus is not killed so easily.

The little pieces are doing very well. Each has grown a new head and a new tail for itself.

Standard Oil of New York now absorbs the General Petroleum Company after having recently absorbed the Magnolia Oil Company. That little fragment of the old octopus is worth close to a billion all by itself.

Standard Oil of California, owning literally billions of barrels of oil stored away in the ground, is worth heaven only knows how much. Standard Oil of Indiana is one of the most powerful oil corporations in the world, and, incidentally, one of the best managed.

Outside of Standard Oil there are other gigantic oil companies, Texas, Tidewater, many more.

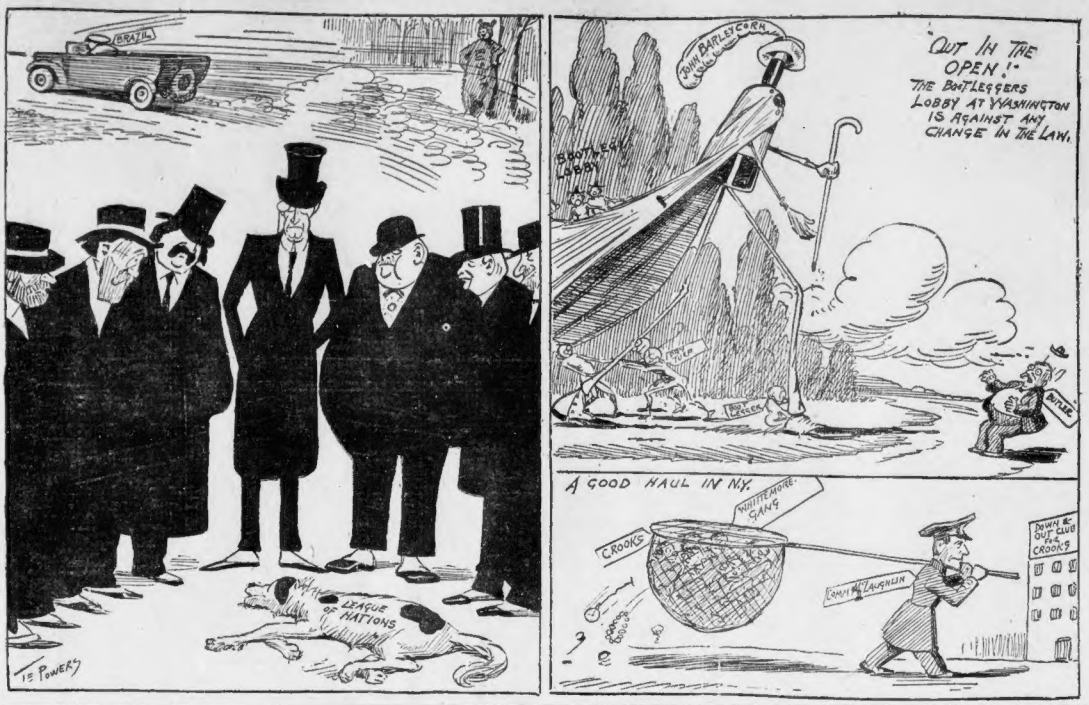

You can't keep a good octopus down.

Irish Is Not British

That Will Suit the Irish

A British court has decided that residents of the Irish Free State are outside of the British Empire. An aged man who had lived in Southern Ireland after the Free State was established was denied the right to an old-age petition pension. The judges said that the right of Irishmen to appeal to Privy Council was not yet decided.

The Post Mortem : : : By T. E. Powers

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

OUR excitement over the Petect tragedy is slowly subsiding.

The Petect family visited Tia Juana. While there the father and two adult daughters found amusement in visiting one of the dives. This they did for several days in succession. During one of the visits the girls were drugged, abducted and ravished by several men. The father and mother became hysterical in their search for the daughters. When the girls returned home the hysteria increased. The father made threats to kill the men who had "brought this shame upon his home"—the mother and daughters huddled together in wild fits of weeping. Finally the father herded the daughters and the mother into the kitchen at the point of a revolver, turned on the gas and the whole family perished. At once the story was taken up, branded as "The Death" and international complications threatened.

The whole country has been stirred by the incident. The keenest sympathy has been expressed for the unfortunate family and almost unanimous approval for Father Petect's action.

Awful Thing to Do

"Of course, it was an awful thing to do," run the comments, "but any man would have been justified in doing it under the circumstances. You really can't blame him, with his family disgraced that way."

With just such sentiments does America at large receive the news that Mr. Julep Winterspoon of So. Caline has shot Mr. Hubert Golightly full of holes because of insult offered to and unfortunately accepted by Miss Winterspoon. Is Mr. Winterspoon acquitted? Absolutely. Under what statute? Under the "unwritten law," say we, rolling our eyes and feeling like mighty oaks.

Under the same law Mr. Edward Brown of Seattle seizes his "gat" and goes gunning for the guy who has eloped to California with Mrs. Brown. And while we make a few futile gestures against gun-toting gentlemen, in our hearts we're strong for Eddie.

Now, I have no hope that I can even nick this venerable tradition, no matter how loud I yell. But it's going to afford me considerable personal satisfaction to try. So here goes:

I don't believe in "Shame Deaths."

I don't believe in "Unwritten laws."

I don't believe you can possibly protect any one's honor, save your own.

I think all that sort of melodrama is exactly on a par with marriage markets, cannibal feasts and other barbaric institutions.

The gloom and horror experienced by the Misses Petect was most regrettable, but it did not disgrace them. No abomination or untoward accident which could be inflicted upon them by outward force could possibly disgrace them. The only persons who could disgrace the Petect girls were the Petect girls themselves.

Moreover, while I have not the slightest use for the beasts who thus mistreated womanhood, I think we should display a little fairness in discussing the incident. This was not a sudden, vicious attack upon two unsuspecting ladies. It was the violence which might well be anticipated from the degraded creatures who frequent such dives as the Petects were visiting. If you go into a hyena's den you can expect rough treatment.

With all due sympathy for these unfortunate women, they themselves, were legally responsible for their fate.

Acts of Fiends.

This same statement applies to nine out of ten of the "outrages" reported in our courts today. Some few of these outrages are the acts of fiends, but usually they are the direct result of playing with gunpowder.

As for Papa Petect's act, it was the melodramatic gesture of a gentleman of the old school. One dislikes to speak ill of the dead but if some living principle can thereby be saved, the thing is justified. There was nothing heroic in Mr. Petect's suicide, and murder of three women. It was an irrational, hysterical, egotistical, sentimental act. And we who approved or applauded should be ashamed of ourselves.

Doubtless the gentleman thought himself justified and judging by our attitude, most of us agree with him. But he wasn't justified. No matter how keenly he felt his daughter's debasement, he had no right thus to assume powers of life and death over his family. Those daughters didn't belong to him. Their shame, if shame it was, wasn't his shame.

FILM INDUSTRY'S MARVELOUS RISE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE story of the moving picture industry is one of the Arabian Nights tales of finance.

About two decades ago it was considered a toy, now it is an important national industry involving an annual expenditure of millions of dollars.

From the flickering, breaking reels shown in the "nickel shows" in rooms over stores in the old days, the motion picture has come to occupy million-dollar theatres on choice business sites and has become the legitimate entertainment for approximately fifty millions annually.

A few facts about this remarkable industry will be of interest:

Los Angeles produces 85 per cent. of all the films made in the world.

Last year more than $168,000,000 was spent in producing films.

The salaries paid to stars and to other workers amount to more than $75,000,000 a year.

Export figures show that films sent to foreign countries increased from 32,000,000 linear feet in 1913 to 200,000,000 feet in 1923. Producers estimate that this latter figure has doubled since 1923.

Next year $65,000,000 will be invested by the industry in real estates, new buildings, equipment and expansion in Los Angeles.

In the United States rentals received by distributors for films aggregate $140,000,000 each twelve months.

Next year 700 feature films are planned for production.

Connected with the industry are a great army of workers that the public never sees.

They include architects, artists, decorators, carpenters, cabinet makers, sculptors, blacksmiths, electricians, chefs, modistes, seamstresses, fashion designers, tailors and jewelers.

One reason Los Angeles ranks as one of the leading lumber importing ports in the United States is because the lumber required to build sets amounts to millions of feet a year.

Almost all of the big studios undertake garment manufacture on a big scale in order to insure that clothing worn in productions will not be out of date by the time the picture is ready for exhibition.

One Hollywood studio employs over eighty garment workers, a bevy of modistes and two high-salaried fashion designers who are stationed in Paris and Hollywood and who change places several times a year.

IF YOU CAN'T ADVANCE DO NOT PREVENT OTHERS

Are you big enough to give others credit where they deserve it, even if by so doing you make an unfavorable impression for yourself?

Isn't there a jealous streak inside which prevents you from giving recognition to the ability and talents of another whose position you might advance by so doing? Obey an impulse you have once in a while to do the fair thing by that person.

You may be set in a certain groove and feel that you cannot get out of it.

For this reason you are averse to helping another to advance.

You can remember when a word from another might possibly have put you in line for promotion long before you got it.

You know now of a case where a word from you would help a person working with you—but envy and jealousy prevent you from taking this opportunity.

Has this mean streak ever gotten you anywhere?

Would it not be a gratification to you to know that you had promoted the success of a deserving worker?

If you can't advance yourself, don't pull the other down.

Prohibition Shaky

Time and Congress Will Tell

The part played in bootlegging by doctors of an inferior class is very considerable. Federal Attorney Buckner in New York seeks the indictment of one hundred doctors and shows that they have issued 4,000,000 illegal prescriptions, distributing 5,000,000 gallons of whiskey illegally.

The prohibition poll all over the country continues to show an overwhelming demand for modification of the Volstead Act or repeal of the prohibition amendment.

There will NOT be any repeal of the amendment in this generation or in this century. Thirty-six States could not be persuaded to vote against prohibition.

There MAY be modification of the Volstead Act, by allowing each State to supply its own definition of "intoxicating liquors" under the Constitutional Amendment. The indications are that some States would call a GOOD DEAL of alcohol not intoxicating.

The effort to change Mr. Volstead's law is not confined to Democratic politics, as some imagine. Mayor Walker, of New York, and Governor Al Smith, Democratic candidate for the Presidency, are conspicuous as Democratic wets, but some Republicans also seem to want a change, or to read the handwriting on the wall. Despite the protests of three women members the New York County Republican Committee adopted a resolution demanding the sale of light wine and beer.

The question is, how "light" must the WINE be? A reasonable amount of three per cent. beer would hardly intoxicate a child. But even a "light" wine has from eight to ten per cent. of alcohol, and that is different.

"Please Shoot Me"

"No Weapon in This House. It Is the Burglar's Easy Mark"

In various parts of the country where crime news is as plentiful and regular as market and weather reports, and in New York, it is suggested, which is the quintessence of asininity, that everything would be all right if the citizens were COMPLETELY DISARMED.

The CRIMINALS, needless to say, would have THEIR "automatics" and other little conveniences. And, under the law, the citizen would advertise his defenselessness. He would practically put up a sign saying: "This house is completely defenseless, burglars welcome, come and shoot me, the law won't let me shoot back."

In these days of contempt for law, born of prohibition and led by the most "respectable" classes, for the householder to be unarmed is to invite CALAMITY.

Fortunately, the Constitution of the United States still guarantees the right of the citizen to "bear arms." If politicians won't let you have the handy "automatic" for burglars and highwaymen get yourself a sawed-off shotgun and load it with buckshot cartridges. They are convenient at reasonable range.
